WASHINGTON LETTER.

STAGE-MANAGER CRISP ARRANGES HIS PROGRAMMES.

The New Democratic Leaders playing the Role of the "Artful Dodger"—The President Compelled to Cancel a Number of Engagements.

Washington Feb. 22, 1892.

Playing the role of the "artful dodger" is nothing new to democratic leaders, and whatever may be the end of the farce-comedy in which they are now engaged, the audience which includes the entire country will get lots of amusement out of it. The programme as arranged by stage manager Crisp was to have the committee on Coinage and that on Ways and Means have a pretended struggle for the right-of way in the House for their bills-free coinage and the tariff-which was to be kept up long enough to make it certain that the free coinage bill woutd be thrown over to the next session, thus allowing the democrats to ask the votes of the free coinage men becuuse of their intention to pass the bill, and the votes of the anti-silver men because of their intention to defeat it.

The first act went according to programe, but after the curtain fell it was discovered that actor Bland proposed making the struggle real and insisting upon the passage ot his free coinage bill, and to the consternation of the stage manager and his assistants it was found that he had a majority of the democrats of the House with him, in black and white. Then Mr. Catchings was sent away, so as to prevent the committee on Rules holding a meeting, and as soon as he returned Speaker Crisp went to Fortress Monroe, where he now is and where the opponents of free silver wish to keep him until Bland and his followers can be persuaded to carry out the original programme.

Mr. Bland is obstreporous. He: "We do not intend that a minority shall run over a majority in that way, and we have a majority in favor of the silver bill. The silver bill will not be kept down by the tariff bills, and if any such attempt is made we will talk silver on every bill that comes before the House, and offer the silver bill as an amendment to every bill taken up. They can't padlock a man's mouth or prevent bringing up the question of free silver and if they try it they will make silver the biggest issue of all. The "they" constantly referred to by Mr. Bland are the ninety anti-silver democrats, who wants silver to go over in the interest of Cleveland's candidacy. The anti-silver democrats, having secnred more than the requisite number of signatures to a call for a caucus have requested Mr. Holman to issue the call and he has promised to do so this week, but that will not help the matter any more than the caucus held by the silver men several weeks ago, as neither side will be bound by a caucus, at least that is what they say.

It is announced that the Ways and Means committee will call up the three free trade bills on the first of March, but it is not probable that they will do so unless some sort of an agreement is made with the silver men. Congress is to meet again to-morrow, but as the Chicago excursionists will not return until Wednesday, there will be no quorum until then.

The President has been compelled to cancel a uumber of engagements made for this week on account of a severe cold from which he is suffering. He is anxious to get away to some quiet place for three or four days rest, but there are so many importaift matters requiring his attention that it is not certain that he can do so just now, unless his physician positively orders him to do it.

The bill passed by the Senate extending the present laws against Chinese immigration for ten years from next May, also contains a provisions to enable the Treasury department to get around the recent judical decisions concerning the country from which the Chinese immigrants come, and to return them to China, instead of to the last country from which they came, as it has recently been compelled to do under the aforesaid decisions. The bill also provides severe penalties for the return of Chinamen once sent out of the United States.

Whatever may have been the prospects of Utah for getting into the Union, at the beginning of this session of Congress, it is not now regarded as having any at all. Thee delegations, each pulling in a different direction, are largely, if not wholly responsible for this.

The Senate and House committees on Immigration have begun the holding of joint sessions for the hearing of statements relating to immigration. There seems so far to be about as many opinions on the subject as there have been speakers before the committee.

Secretary Foster sails to-morrow for a trip to Europe. He goes merely for the sea voyage, and will immediately return.

Representatives Enloe and Cooper have requested that the committee postpone its investigation of the Pension office, to allow them time to collect evidence. That's queer, as they have been claiming all along to have plenty of every evidence.

FIRE AT McKEESPORT.

A Fireman's House, Burned and Two of His Children Cremated.

Special to the NEWS

McKEESPORT Feb. 23

A frame house occupied by Michael Lynch and family was burned last night.

Mr. Lynch is a fireman and was at the engine or Hose house when the alarm was given. He rode the hose cart to the fire, and was horrified to find it was his own house burning. He rushed into the flames to save his wife and children. He succeeded in saving his wife and was then overcome by heat and smoke. His fellow firemen rescued him f om the burning building, but two of his children were burned to death and another one very seriously burned.

His wife was uninjured but is distracted and nearly insane over the loss of her children, and the fa ther is in about the same condition. It being so late at night the fire had made great headway before any one discovered it and the family were asleep and did not awake until aroused by the frantic husband and father.

ELKINS FOR GOVERNOR.

Leading Republicans Say the Secretary Will Be the Candidate in West Virginia.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 22.—Ex-Congressman George W. Atkinson and National Committeeman N. B. Scott, leading Republicans, say that Secretary of War Elkins, is to be nominated for Governor and will accept. The formal announcement of his candidacy is to be made at the convention of Republican Clubs, in Parkersburg, next Wednesday.

The Ohio Valley Trade and Labor Assembly, composed of all the organized trades in this section, and the State Farmers' Alliance, are preparing to unite on an independent State ticket, and they may also have nominees in all the Legislative districts.

The Coroner Investigating.

PITTSBUGH, Feb., 22.—The coroner's inquest on the body of Sarah Joyce began to-day and after the examination of several witnesses, adjourned until Saturday next. There is now no doubt that the girl was murdered, as the evidence proves conclusively that her death was a violent one, and everything thus far brought out seems to show she died in defense of her honor. John Pulfras has been positively identified by a sister of the dead girl as the colored man who passed up Sylvan avenue a short time before Sarah Joyce started on that fatal walk. He admits that himself. The wound on the girl's cheek, according to the testimony of the doctors who examined the corpse, could have been produced by pieces of wire found on Pulfras's person. The unfortunate girl must have lived for possibly fifteen hours after she was assaulted, as her body was still warm when it arrived at the morgue.

The Adjutant General Appointment.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 22.—The contest for the vacancy caused by the death of Adjutant General McClelland has been a warm one, but is likely to be settled early this week by the appointment of Lieutenant Colonel J. B. R. Streator, of the Tenth regiment. Lieutenant Streator is from Washington county, and was an advocate of Pattison's nomination for governor. Lieutenant Colonel W. W. Greenland, of Clarion, is undoubtedly the governor's second choice, and it may be confidently stated that the appointment lies between the two, with Streator in the lead. There has been a strong pressure brought to bear in favor of Lieutenant Colonel Frank I Rutledge of the Eighteenth regiment, and Senator Hannibal K. Sloan, of Indiana county, but the governor's first predilections were in favor of Streator or Greenland, and his purpose is not likely to be changed.

Surprise Party.

This being the 68th anniversary of the birth of Mrs. A. J. Green, her family and friends concluded to surprise the old lady by getting up a party in her honor. The plan worked like a charm. She was surprised, for she had no information, admonition or premonition until it was sprung upon her. The friends collected at the house, and had a very enjoyable time. Mrs. Green after recovering from her surprise joined in with the balance of the party, and was as merry and lively as any of the girls present. The party left her some mementoes by which she can remember the occasion and the fact that her friends remember her. May she enjoy many occasions of the kind in the future.

DAVID HILL'S CONVENTION.

HE HAD THE VOTES AND THE BRASS BANDS YESTERDAY

The Hall in Which the Convention Was Held in Albany Was Filled to Over Flowing By Out Siders and Delegates Who Were Boisterous

ALBANY, February 22.—The democratic convention was called to order by Chairman Edward Murphy, of the state committee, at noon. The crush was tremendous. Many delegates were shut out through the anxiety of the Albany people to get in without formality. The chairman introduced as temporary chairman Judge George M. Beebe, who made a stirring address.

Judge Beebe's reference to David B. Hill as "the leader under whom democracy has never known disaster, dishonor or defeat," was a sentence of the address that warmed the blood of the delegates, and a shout that broke into a series of rattling yells burst forth from several thousands of throats. The Hill club, of Elmira waved its banner, and the flags of other organizations split and sawed the air as their bearers shouted and waved simultaneously.

Following the speech of Mr. Beebe, Clerk De Forest called the roll. When the name of Lieutenant Gover or Shahau was called there was a surprising demonstration of applause almost equalling that accorded the mention of Hill's name. The committees on credentials, permanent organization, platform and delegates were then selected.

The following resolutions were adopted with regard to the committee on delegates and electors.

Resolved, That the delegates from the several congressional districts select one delegate from each congressional district to constitute a committee on delegates and electors, and the committee so constituted is hereby directed to report to this convention for its approval the names of four delegates and four alternates, who shall be delegates and four alternates from the state-atlarge to the democratic national convention. Also two delegates and two alternates to said convention from each congressional district to be nominated to said committee by delegates from the several congressional districts; also the names of two presidental electors from the state-at-large and one elector from each congressional district, said district electors to be nominated to said committee by delegates from the several congressional districts, and in any case where the delegates from a congressional district are unable to agree upon a choice for district delegates, or presidental elector, they shall report the fact to the committee on delegates and electors, which shall determine the selection, subject to the approval of the convention.

Under the resolution already adopted all questions were referred to the committee on delegates and electors for determinatin. The recess was then taken until 3.30 o'clock.

The committee decided the contests in the Second Chautauque. the First Oswego and the Fourth Albany districts. In each case the Hill delegates were selected. Thus the contests were all shut out from the notice of the convention.

Chairman Beebe called the afternoon session to order at 4.20. The report of the committee on contested seats favored the seating of the delegates in the contested cases in Albany and Chautauqua. The Oswego contest was withdrawn. The report was adopted. The report of the committee on permanent organization was then presented and adopted.

General Daniel E. Sickles was made permanent chairman and when he was introduced by Judge Beebe he received an ovation from the convention. While this committee was on its errand Secretary of State Cice handed up the report of the committee, to which was entrusted the preparation of the list of national delegates and alternates at large and by districts. Next was presented and read the list of state presidential electors at large and by district. Presidential electors at large: W. M. Sternway and Erastus Corning; First district, Frederick Bachman; Second John R. McKane; Third, John H. Graham; Fourth, E. E. Lutcfield; Fifth, John Weber. Sixth, Ed. W. Kearney; Seventh, Evan Thomas. Eighth, John A. McCall, Ninth, Joseph J. O. Donohue; Tenth, John D. Crimmins; Eleventh, Neeson Smith; Twelfth, Jacob Rupert; Thirteenth, Isaac Wonnser; Fourteenth, Martin J. Keogh; Fifteenth, Thomas Finnegan; Sixteenth, Philip C. Reilly; Seventeenth, David Kennedy; Eighteenth, Rufus R. Davis Nineteenth, Edward A. Mahar; Twentieth Edward Wemple, Twenty-first, Patrick McBory, Twenty-second, Wilbur F. Porter, Twenty-third, Alex T. Goodwins, Twenty-fourth, Horatio B. Wethsteen, Twenty-fifth, William Gaynor, Twenty-sixth, Geo. F. O'Neill, Twenty-seventh, E. McIntry, Twenty-Eighth, B. L. Swartwood, Twenty-ninth. Chas. E. Walker, Thirtieth, Donald McNaughton. Thirty first Dr. J. E. Crissfield, Thirty second, Chas A. Sweet, Thirty third, W. M. Green, Thirty fourth, Peter S. Hort.

After the election of the delegates Senator Hill was called upon and returned his thanks in a brief speech, and the convention adjourned sine die.

SENTIMENT AND LIFE.

Grover Cleveland's Address Before The University of Michigan Yesterday Many Prominent Persons Present.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., February 22.—Ex-President Cleveland, accompanied by ex-Governor Campbell, of Ohio; ex-Postmaster General Don Dickinson, of Detroit; W. S. Bissell, of Buffalo, Mr. Cleveland's law partner, and Richard Watson Gilder, editor of the Century Magazine, arrived here at 11.45 from Detroit. The city was daily decorated in honor of the distinguished parrty. Fully 2,000 students of the university were gathered at the depot and greeted them with the blare of tin horns and with the university yell. Mayor Doty met the party as they alighted from the train and presented Mr. Cleveland with the freedom of the city in a silver casket. The ex-president replied with a few suitable words of thanks, saying that of all the offices which he had held he had enjoyed none more than that of mayor. President Angell, of the university, was then presented and a procession was formed of the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti military companies' students and prominent citizens of this and other cities, and marched through the principal streets. After lunch at President Angell's residence the party proceeded to University Hall, where at 3 o'clock Mr, Cleveland delivered an address upon the subject of "Sentiment in Our National Life."

Among other things Mr. Cleveland said: "None of us can be ignorant of the ideas which constitnte the sentiment underlying our national structure. We know they are a reverent belief in God a sincere recognition of the value and power of moral principle and those qualities of heart which make a noble manhood, devotion to unreserved patriotism, love for man's equality, unquestioning trust in popular rule, the exaction of civic virtue and honesty, faith in the saving quality of universal education protection of a free and unperverted expression of the popular will. and an insistence upon a strict accountability of public officers as servants of the people."

"It is about George Washington completely represented all the elements of American sentiment, that every incident of his life from his childhood to his death, is worth recalling—whether it impresses the youth with the beauty and value of moral traits, or whether it exhibits to the wisest and oldest, an example of sublime accomplishment and the highest possible public service. Even the anecdotes told of his boyhood have their value. I have no sympathy with those who in these latter days attempt to shake our faith in the authenticity of these stories, because they are not satisfied with the evidence in their support, or because they do not seem to accord with the conduct of boys in this generation. It may well be, that the stories should stand and the boys of the present day be pitied At any rate these anecdotes have answered an important purpose; and in the present state of the proofs, they should, in my opinion, be believed. The cherry tree and hatchet incident and its companion declaration that the Father of his County never told a lie, have indelibly fixed upon the mind of many a boy the importance of truthfulness

"I cannot believe that the American people will consider themselves called upon to share the deprecatory feeliug of the biographer when he writes that the mother of Washington could "only" say of her son that she believed he would be faithful to the highest earthly trusts, because he had been good, nor that they will regard her words merely as an amiable tolerated expression of a fond mother. If they are true to American sentiment they will recognize in this language the announcement of the important truth that, under our institutions and schemes of government, goodness such as Washington's is the best guaranty for the faithful discharge of public duty. They will certainly do well for the country and for themselves if they adopt the standard the intuition of this noble woman suggests as the measure of their trust and confidence. It means the exaction of moral principle add personal honor and honesty and goodness as indispensible credentials to political preferment."

"I beg you therefore to take with you when you go forth to assume the obligations of American citizenship, as one of the best gifts of your alma matter, a strong and abiding faith in the value and potency of a good conscience and a pure heart. Never yield one iota to those who teach that these are weak and childish things, not needed in the struggle of manhood with the realities of life. Interest yourselves in public affairs as a duty of citizenship; but do not surrender your faith to those who discredit and debase politics by scoffing at sentiments and principle, and whose political activity consists in attempts to gain popular support by cunning devices and shrewd manipulation. You will find plenty of these who will smile at your profession of faith and tell you that truth and virtue and honesty and goodness were well enough in the old days when Washington lived, but are not suited to the present size and development of our country and the progress we have made in the art of political management. Be steadfast. The strong and sturdy oak still need the support of its native earth, and as it grows in size and spreading branches, its roots must strike deeper in the soil which warmed and fed its tender sprout. You will be told that the people have no longer any desire for the things you profess. Be not deceived. The people are not dead but sleeping. They will awaken in good time, and scourge the money changers from their sacred temple."

BOUGHT HER HUSBAND.

After Giving a Man $50 to Marry Her, a Woman Finds He Wanted Another Partner Who Would Give Him $150.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 22.—Rosa Horowitz was before a Police Justice to-day charged with stealing two pairs of pantaloons from Abram Horowitz, who she says is her husband.

The young woman told a strange story. She said she had been employed by Harowit until a short time ago, when in consideration of $50 he promised to marry her. A man she supposed to be a preacher performed the ceremony. They had lived together but a few weeks when Horowitz abused and beat her and she left him. She then learned that he was glad to get rid of her, as he wanted to marry another woman who had offered him $150. She took her husband's pantaloons because he refused to return the money she had paid to get him to marry her.

The husband's charge of larceny was not proven, and the case was dismissed.

Prof. D. M. Bristol's Equine Wonders.

Professor Bristol and his wonderful troupe of performing horses commenced an engagement last night at the popular People's Theatre. The exhibition is one of the most marvelous displays of animal intelligence that has ever been witnessed in this city. Probably the most remarkable performance was that of Sultan, who told the time by looking at Prof, Bristol's watch, and did sums in arithemetic.

The mule, Denver, proved himself to be an animal of wonderful intelligence and went through the most intricate tricks in such a humorous manner as to win him applause of the large audience present. Comache, and Naomi and Harry, the two beautiful white twins, and the pony Tony, all proved themselves clever animals and showed that they had received long and careful training. It is truly a most astonishing exhibition of equine intelligence.—The Philadelphia Call.

At the Opera House two nights, commencing next Monday, Matinee on Tuesday at which all children attending will be given free pony ride.

Doings at Howard.

Our worthy magistrate Esquire Hayes Schenk was called upon yesterday to go over to Heckla, to perform the marriage ceremony for a young couple from State College. The bride was Miss Luella Stover and the happy groom is Mr. Howard Zey, both residents of State College. The Squire tied the knot in his usual happy manner and returned home smiling.

He says he would rather marry a good looking couple any time than to try a lawsuit. In this case the young ladies present said the groom was just as pretty as he could be, and the young gentlemen said if Mrs. Zey "nee Stover" had a sister as pretty as herself, there would be another wedding soon or somebody would get the mitten. The NEWS tenders the compliments of the season to the beautiful bride the happy groom and his honor, the Squire.

A Rather Queer Skeleton.

Charles Woodruff, a Western ranchman passed through the city yesterday, bound for England to visit his old home. He had a skeleton with him that was dug up on his farm. The head and trunk resembled the human form, but the spinal colum extended fully two feet, make a long tail. He thinks it is a specimen of prehistoric man, and he intends to present it to the British Museum.

THAT WONDERFUL LAST NAIL.

Mrs. Potter Palmer will put the finishing touch on the Woman's Building with hammer and spike of costly make.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, President of the Board of Lady Managers of the Exposition as already announced, will drive the last nail used in completion of the Woman's Building. This nail will be furnished by the women of Montana, and will be a very wonderful one, as is indicated by this description of it, given by the Helena Montana, Independent:

The nail has been so made as to form the back or cross bar of a brooch, which is to be a shield bearing the coat of arms of Montana reproduced in native gold without a trace of alloy in its composition. The Shield will be of gold, and the symbolical figures will be made of the same metal but of different colors. The waterfall in the foreground will be of light colored gold sunk into the shield, and the plow and pick, standing at the foot of the falls, will be of a dark shade, as will be the background or relief. The wreath surrounding the escutcheon will be of native gold, and the figures of the two men supporting the whole on either side will also be of the scroll, bearing the motto of the state, "Oroy Plata." In the two upper portions of the wreath two Montana sapphires will be inserted. Instead of merely engraving the figures, each will be wrought separately and then fastened together, making the task of shaping the brooch not only a delicate, but exceedingly difficult one, and one that will require much skill and patience.

To Mrs. J. E. Richards, of Butte, belongs the credit of the happy idea of making the last nail one of such interest. In design the nail, which is being made by a Butte jeweler, will be the counterpart of an ordinary twelve-penny nail and will be composed of three stripes with silver in the center and the gold and copper on either side. The nail and brooch ar distinct articles and after the former has been driven it will be drawn from the wood, fastened to the brooch and the whole presented to Mrs. Palmer.

The women of Nebraska have undertaken to furnish the hammer with which this "last nail" will be driven. A description of the hammer has not yet been given, but it is the intention to make it worthy of the aristocratic nail with which it will be brought in contact by Mrs. Palmer. It has been suggested that it be made of native Nebraska woods, inlaid with gold, silver and pearl.

Policeman Garis and the Court House.

There has been some objection, we hear to the fact that a very small sum was paid to Policeman William Garis by the commissioners for giving special attention to the court house. The fact is, the commissioners requested him to look at the court house as he was on his beat, and if he saw a window up or anything not properly fastened to remedy it, for which they were to pay him a nominal sum. This was done which was no more than any private citizen might request the policeman to do, and the commissioners were entirely justifiable. He was not employed as a night watchman, nor to do anything that would cause him to neglect his regular duty. ***

Accident.

Mrs. Hastings, a widow lady living on Spring street, while attempting to go down the cellar, fell to the bottom of the stairs, cutting a severe gash in her head and was otherwised badly bruised. Drs. Hibler and Sibert were summoned and found it necessary to take several stitches in the wound. The lady is in her seventy-eighth year and is getting along well considering her advance age.

Terse Telegrams.

A dispatch from Guatetmala says that business there is bad. Many failures have occurred and a financial crisis is imminent.

The Cutler Creek gold strike, near Ouray Col. appears to be genuine. Men are climbing over the hills and staking claims at night. More than 100 claims have been staked in the last twenty-four hours.

Congressmen Leave Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—The special trains bearing the Congressional visitors who have been inspecting the World's Fair site and buildings left for Washington this morning. If the trains are on time the Congressmen will reach Washington at 10 o'clock to-morrow forenoon.

Louisiana Lottery.

The latest news regarding this much talked of concern is, that it is going to Nicaragua. That country having granted a perpetual charter, thus making it a national institution. Its head quarters will be at Greytown.

Valerie;

OR,

HALF A TRUTH.

BY "THE DUCHESS."

She turned and walked impatiently through the room.

"I don't know—I don't care!" she said in a reckless kind of manner that a better woman than Constance Langley would hardly have liked to see, "but I can't marry him. Things are so—so different from what they were then—I—I couldn't live as I used to. I should not be happy—I have grown worldly," with a short, bitter little laugh, "and I must have the world, and all that belongs to it!"

She was playing a part in uttering these words that belied her, in wild terror of the possible question her conscience made her morbidly anticipate:

"Are you fancying yourself in love with some other man?"

She went out of her way to make her aunt believe that it was love of the world, dread of poverty, that made her cast Louis off.

Yet her cheek colored at the deception. She would have cast the world and all that belonged to it into the depths of the sea for Max Beauregard's sake; she would beg her bread by his side sooner than be a king's consort.

But Mrs. Langley was, naturally enough, deceived; and smiled, well-pleased, on her pupil. To do her credit, she honestly believed that a wealthy marriage was the happiest state for any girl.

Now and then some ill-regulated woman broke loose, and created a temporary scandal, but the majority settled down, and were much more to be envied than those who married "for love," and who were just as likely to end in the divorce court as anyone else.

"If you prefer it, my dear," said Mrs. Langley, "I will write to Mr. Charteris, for of course there was no engagment——"

"No!" interrupted the girl, resolutely, "I will not be cowardly as well as fickle! In honor—between us two—there was an engagement. I will see him myself!"

"The carriage is at the door, ma'am," said a footman, appearing, and a few minutes later Valerie was being mobbed at a crowded "at home," and only feeling that existence was for her a sunless sea, since "love was done," and the man she worshipped must utterly despise her!

"Behind no prison-gate, she said,
Which slurs the sunshine half a mile,
Lie captives so uncomforted
As souls behind a smile."

CHAPTER XXIII.—AT THE MAGAZINE.

Max Beauregard might have multiplied himself a dozen times if he had accepted

It was a splendid turn-out, everyone said.

all the offers he received of box-seats for the turn-out of the Four-in-hand Club, or he could have tooled his brother's coach; but he declined all allurements; he had business at the War Office, he said, and so he had; only he might easily have put it off.

"Shameful!" cried a chorus of fair ones, each one of whom had made up her mind that Colonel Beauregard was going to drive his brother's famous bays, with her on the seat beside him.

It was a splendid turn-out, everyone said; and so it was. The day was fine, the Park crowded, and the coaches came forth in force. Numbers came to see the beauty, Valerie Herbert, and they were not disappointed, for there she was in gray satin, Charles II. hat with sweeping plumes, the loveliest woman where lovely faces might be seen at every turn. Aston Lawford drove four browns, and drove them well; and behind him sat pretty women and good-looking men; but nobody looked at him, and he was well-contented that his beautiful box-companion diverted all attention from even his tooling, of which he was somewhat proud, though coaching men only allowed him second rank as a whip.

But while Valerie laughed and talked gaily, her quick, far-seeing eyes were searching half nervously among the crowds by the railing; and suddenly, while a line of coaches stood waiting, she saw the face she sought, but scarcely wished to see. A light color flitted across her own, as for a moment she met Louis' upward glance, full of pain and anger; then her eyes sank, and she bowed and turned away. When she looked again Louis was gone.

"There is Mr. Beauregard's coach just behind us," said one of the ladies at the back—pretty Mrs. Leicester; "but I thought the Colonel would drive it."

"He isn't here to-day at all," said Lawford. "I saw him last night in Whitehall Gardens, and he said he would be busy at the War Office."

Was Valerie relieved, or the opposite? She could not have told; but Mrs. Leicester said:

"Bother the War Office! why couldn't the man do his work there another day?"

Lawford smiled.

"A lady's way of looking at business," he said. But Mrs. Leicester was right this time, though she didn't know it.

By-and-by, when the coaches were moving on at walking pace, the "iron man" asked Valerie:

"Was not that Mr. Charteris you bowed to a little while ago?"

He had heard of Louis from Mrs. Langley, though not of any engagement between the young man and Valerie.

"Yes," she answered, nonchalantly. My lady was somewhat offended by the tone.

"He scarcely looked pleased to see you," continued Lawford; "was it because you were here

Valerie opened her great eyes on him with a stare of comical surprise.

"Why should he, or anyone, mind that?" she said, with that determined naivete which is sometimes very aggravating in a lovely woman, but very witching all the same. "I might have been with anyone else. The Duke of —— offered me his box-seat; and poor little Emly almost knelt to me to go on his."

"And yet," said Lawford, lowering his tone, "you gave me the preference!"

"Simply," with a shrug, "because if I went with the Duke the Duchess would be jealous; and I heartily dislike Emly."

Lawford's brow darkened.

"Am I only a pis aller, then?" he said.

"You should take blessings as they come," said Valerie, gravely, "and not inquire too closely why they come. No—no more, please. One positively can not be serious on the box-seat of a coach; though I verily believe you would be serious at a carnival."

"And you serious at nothing!" returned Lawford, almost brusquely. He loved Valerie in a selfish, narrow fashion; or, more correctly, he was dazzled and infatuated, and wanted her beauty to crown the edifice of his wealth—and shed, by its fame, a kind of halo over himself.

His gentle blood and good-breeding saved him from being a snob in the worst and most vulgar sense; but there is a kind of snobbery which may be found among well-born men and women, and is more or less offensive to fine senses; and to this class Aston Lawford belonged; a pride, not of wealth, but of those things which wealth procures—his pictures, his horses, his establishment generally. "The iron entered into his soul," Max Beauregard said of him once; and, it may be added, the witty paraphrase in application, but not of words, was somehow repeated to Aston Lawford, and then he never forgave it.

"Now you are cross," said Valerie, very coolly, and shrugging her shoulders; but inwardly she quailed. Was she going too far with this man? She had never supposed that he really cared for her. Could it be that he did—that she was trifling with him?

"And you—cruel!" returned Lawford, lowering his colors at once. Valerie would have respected him better if he had been less ready to yield. As it was she answered by another shrug, and bowed with unnecessary empressement to Harry Dallas, who was on horseback among the spectators.

Some of the coaches, among them Lawford's and Gerald Beauregard's, drove down to the Crystal Palace for luncheon, and there, as everywhere, Valerie Herbert was the centre of attraction. If homage and flattery could make happiness, she ought to have been sublimely happy. Lady Elinor remarked to her husband that the girl flirted outrageously, and he smiled.

"What can be expected," he said, "when a girl is so fascinating, and men make such a fuss with her? But 'outrageously' is a strong term. Is the Lawford affair settled?"

"Her aunt told me yes. Valerie has gone almost too far to recede; besides, why should she, unless some duke or earl came forward—and there are none eligible at present."

And when Gerald and his wife returned to Whitehall Gardens, Max threw down the book he had been holding, but not reading, the last ten minutes, and asked them, smiling, how the meet had gone off?

"Splendidly!" said Lady Elinor. "Why, have you heard nothing about it?"

"I was at the War office," he answered, "until three o'clock, and then I had a lot of letters to write, so I came straight home. You seem tired, Gerald," he added, to his brother.

"I am; you know how little I care for London life. I shall take myself off to Abbot's Leigh very soon, and leave you to take care of Nellie."

Then Lady Elinor began to tell all about the meet and the luncheon, and of course Valerie came to the front. How she looked, what she wore, how everyone said it would be "a match" with Lawford; how she flirted, and all the rest of it. To which Colonel Beauregard listened with a due amount of interest, and gave no hint that he was on the rack the whole time; and Lady Elinor afterward said complacently to her husband:

"It is lucky Max doesn't seem to have taken a fancy to Valerie Herbert. He wouldn't get over it as most men get over disappointments."

If she had seen Max Beauregard when he was alone again—seen the gray agony of his face, heard the whisper: "Oh, Heaven! oh, Valerie! my love, my love!"—her shrewd ladyship, who flattered herself that few men or women could deceive her, might have owned that one man, at least, knew how to keep the pensieri streiti behind the volto scilto.

CHAPTER XXIV.—"I CANNOT MARRY YOU!"

"She is false and fickle—not worthy any man's second thought," said Louis Charteris to himself, as he turned away from the railing near the Magazine. "I will not see her to-morrow." And he went back to the office and wrote a letter to Valerie full of bitter reproaches, which he tore up as soon as it was finished. Hope was not so dead within him as he had imagined; and he woke up on Thursday morning with the resolve to go and see Valerie. Surely she could not intend to throw him over for a fellow like Lawford, rich though the latter was!

The young man knew not whether he hoped most or feared most when he took his way to Upper Brook Street, but he rallied himself as he drew near the house, and was able to ask calmly for Miss Herbert.

The footman, who had his orders, conducted the young man at once to the drawing-room, and, opening the door, announced:

"Mr. Charteris."

For a moment Louis only saw, as if through a mist, a tall, slender form standing at the other side of the room, a gleam of golden hair, a flow of white draperies; but as the figure moved forward slowly, the mist rolled away, and he beheld Valerie clearly, her face as white as her robes, her large eyes fixed on his with a strange mingling of fear and appeal, and all the power of her rare and pathetic beauty reasserted itself and held him in its spell. He sprang forward; he would have clasped the girl in his arms, but she stopped short, and with a wild gesture, with almost a cry, checked the impulse. He reeled back.

"Valerie!" he gasped, half dizzy with the sudden revulsion.

"Not that!" said the girl, hoarsely, her lips, every limb quivering—"that can never be again! Louis, bear with me. Oh! what can I say to you—how shall I tell you?"

But Louis only stood and looked at her, the flush on his cheek fading slowly away and leaving intense paleness. He seemed incapable of speech.

Valerie went on, desperately:

"It was a mistake from the beginning—on my part. But how should I know it then? I loved you only as I had always loved you, and as I love you now. I cannot marry you, Louis—I cannot—I cannot!"

"Stay!" said the young man, hoarsely. He moved a step nearer to her. "Have they taught you to be untruthful as well as mercenary and worldly? You loved me until you learned to love wealth, and admiration, and position more. Ay, you may shrink from me"—for instinctively she had recoiled before the accusation so false, yet against which she dare not defend herself—"but you know that what I say is true. You are breaking your promise to me for the sake of a man you do not and never will love; but he is a millionaire, and I have nothing. He will load you with jewels, and give you all else that you have learned to value so much more than love. And you will count yourself happy. Happy!" he laughed, harshly. "And I? But what is that to you? No matter what I suffer, if you can be the reigning beauty and the wife of a man whose wealth will enable you to outstrip every other woman."

Not a word did Valerie utter; not by a sign or gesture did she offer to interrupt this tirade, which Louis poured out, not standing still, but walking excitedly up and down. She only set her teeth in silent endurance. He wronged her, but she must bear it. Better a thousand times that he should believe all that he had accused her of than even suspect the truth. She had so dreaded the charge!

"It is Max Beauregard who stands between us. For his sake you are false to me!"

She breathed more freely when told that she was untruthful, mercenary, worldly. It was hard to be misjudged by one she so dearly loved. But when Max Beauregard must so misjudge her, and she could endure it, what other suffering could overtax her powers of endurance?

Louis paused suddenly, looked at the motionless figure, the white face of the girl, and drew near to her again.

"What!" he said, "have you no answer—no denial? For Heaven's sake, Valerie," he stretched out his hands, the words were almost a cry of anguish, "don't tell me that you are so false—so miserably unworthy!"

The blood rushed to Valerie's cheek and brow. Passionate denial was on her lips. Then, with a quick-drawn breath, she turned away, locking her hands over her breast. She dared not plead the truth; she could not speak a falsehood.

Louis drew back and folded his arms. There was a dead pause.

The girl's face had grown white again; she scarcely seemed to breathe; her eyes were bent down, her head drooping; she stood before her lover like a guilty creature; but oh, how beautiful—how beautiful she was! and that beauty she was going to sell for gold! That thought nerved Louis to scorn.

"Silent still!" he broke forth at last, laying a sudden grip on the girl's slender wrist—she did not shrink or tremble now. "You own it, then? own that you are ready to barter your youth and beauty for money? You will give yourself, body and soul, to a man old enough to be your father, not because he is noble and good, and you love him, but because he is rich! Never mind that you and I were boy and girl together—that your word was pledged to me—that I have loved you faithfully; all that is nothing—nothing now! I am poor, and Aston Lawford is rich. I might have known it long ago; but I was an idiot, and I hoped against hope. Very soon the love of the world began to eat your heart out; your letters were cold and infrequent—your manner when we met was changed! Oh, I have been a fool! and you, no doubt, laughed at my folly——"

"Louis! Louis!"

"Ay!" he exclaimed, savagely, "you can cry out when you are stabbed; but you may stab me to the heart, and I must suffer in silence! That is a woman's privilege. A blight on the wretched code you have so quickly learned, and on all who follow it! I have done with you! I hope I may never see your false face again!"

He almost flung her from him as he spoke, and turned to the door. Valerie staggered, and caught at a chair near her.

"Louis," she said, choking back the sob in her throat, "must we part like this?"

But he did not heed—perhaps did not hear—the words; blind with passion and pain, he could only see that he was deliberately abandoned for the sake of wealth and position; could only read conscious guilt in Valerie's silence, in her drooping eyes and changing color; a longer experience of life might have helped him here; but Louis was not yet four-and-twenty, and knew little or nothing of human nature. Valerie had loved him—loved him how—but loved the world more. He was too young to be pitiful; his love had not the strength and depth for the noble sorrow that could cry "The pity on't!" Valerie was miserably mean and despicably, utterly without excuse; she had grown cold and heartless; she cared nothing for suffering she inflicted; so, with only anger and resentment in his heart, Louis rushed out of the room, and a minute later was striding away from the house, hardly knowing where he went, and feeling as if all the world was false and hollow, and his life could never again hold anything worth living for.

And suddenly—there was a roar in his ears—shouting—a mist before his eyes—a strong hand seized him, and plucked him from under the nose of a rearing carriage-horse; a voice that somehow seemed familiar, exclaimed:

"Louis Charteris! Confound it, man! do you want to commit suicide?"

And the young man lifted his dazed eyes to the handsome face of Max Beauregard.

CHAPTER XXV.—LOVE VS. GOLD.

"I don't know how it happened," Louis said, vaguely. "Where is this?"

Of course there was a crowd; the brougham which had nearly run over the heedless wayfarer stopped, two or three hansoms ditto, also several passengers, and a dozen or more of those idlers who seem to be shot, as from a catapult, to the scene of any accident.

"I should say you didn't," replied Colonel Beauregard. "This is Regent Street. You don't seem well, old fellow. We'll drive the rest of the way home."

He raised his hand.

"Right, sir!" responded alert cabby, who had had an eye to business.

Then Louis hesitated.

"But——" he began.

"Jump in, man," returned Beauregard, quickly. "We shall have all Regent Street round us in a minute."

Louis obeyed, and Max followed.

"Where are you living?" he asked.

Louis gave the address, and the cab bowled away toward the modest street where the Foreign Office clerk dwelt.

ARRESTED FOR A MURDER.

FRANK CALLEN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY YESTERDAY MORNING.

He Was Arrested by Officer Collier for a Crime Committed in Illinois Over Four Years Ago—A Strong Case Against Him.

Frank Callen, a young man of Altoona, was arrested yesterday on the charge of murder. The deed in question was committed at Edgington, Rock Island county, Ill., on February 21, 1888, the victim being a man by the name of Daniel Daugherty. Callen, who has been taken into custody for such a grave crime, has been residing at 319 Fourth avenue and has been a resident of Altoona for a little more than a year, being first known of in the city on Jan. 17, 1892, when he entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad company as a freight brakeman, doing service in the yard. From all the evidence bearing on the matter he seems to be the man that is wanted by the Illinois authorities and his detection was skillfully made. He will be taken to Illinois to stand a trial.

It is about two months ago since Railroad Officer Collier received a circular from the authorities of Rock Island county, Illinois, offering a reward for the apprehension of Patrick McDermott, who was stated to have committed the crime above mentioned. There was, however, no indication in the circular as to where the fugitive criminal was supposed to be, and the long time that had elapsed since the murder would seem to preclude the likelihood of capturing him.

After being arrested, Callen, or McDermott, admitted that he was acquainted with the murdered Daugherty, and that he came from Illinois. He also stated that he had quarreled with Daugherty, and further that upon Daugherty's death he had inherited a property by his wife, her maiden name being Daugherty. When further questioned as to his whereabouts at different times during the few years past he did not hesitate to give a complete account, with the exception of the month during which the murder was committed. He was evidently much unballanced by his sudden arrest and made no attempt at resistance, until, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning he was taken to Bonine's photogoaph gallery to have his picture taken. He then became very obstreperous. Although handcuffed he struggled with all his energy to free himself when he discovered what was to be done. He became very wordy in his denunciations and threatened to kill Officer Collier.

ROBBED ON THE TRAIN.

William Turner Tells Chief Russell A Tale of Woe.

Williamsport Republican

A tall young man giving his name as William Turner, entered the police station this afternoon and told Chief Russell that he had been robbed of $10 or $12, and a revolver worth about $6.

Turner stated that he was a bartender by profession and at one time tended bar here at the Park hotel. He has been out of work lately, however, and his wife has been cooking at Renovo, where he also had been hanging ont. Yesterday he was at Lock Haven, and while there he met a fellow and they drank around at several saloons, finally ending up by taking the evening trian for Williamsport.

When they arrived here, Turner says, he proposed to his new-found friend that they go into the Park hotel and take a drink. The fellow didn't want to go in there, howeveer, and then they started for Spellisy's hotel. Reaching there Turner's friend said: "You go a head. I want to see a lady and will be in shortly." But he never came in, and when Turner reached in his pocket for the money to pay for the drink, he found he had been robbed. He thinks that the fellow he met in Lock Haven relieved him while on the train, and he is now looking for him.

The revolver belonged to a friend of Turner's, who went to Keating yesterday. Turner loaned him some money and took the revolver for security.

Chief Russell remembers having seen Turner when he worked here at the Park Hotel. The police will make an effort to recover the money and the revolver.

LINGO'S INNOCENCE.

One of the Judges Who Tried Him Believes in It.

Judge Thomas McDowell, who was one of the court which convicted Frank Lingo, declared this morning that he has not changed his mind one whit with regard to his belief in Lingo's innocence. Said he:

"I most certainly think that the evidence does not support the verdict. It would be an awful thing to hang a man about whose guilt there was as much doubt as there is in this case. By the State's own evidence this negro must have accomplished his bloody work, and succeeded in removing every trace of the same, in the short space of twenty minutes.

"Altogether there was not enough blood found on him—body, finger nails and clothes—to make a single drop. I certainly think that if the case ever reaches the Court of Errors, where the lay judges will have a vote, the decision of the Supreme Court will be reversed."

Resigned.

Rev Dr. Asbury Clark, a native of Birmingham, Huntingdon county, this State, who has been the pastor of one of the leading Presbyterian churches of Philadelphia has resigned his charge without a word of explanat i o was led to follow the course he did on account of the old maids of the church who were dissatisfied and piqued because, as they allege, the handsome batchelor parson did not pay sufficient attention.

THE JOHNSTOWN FLOOD.

Justice Williams Holds That it Was Unvoidable.

Justice Williams to-day handed down a decision in the case of Thomas J. Long versus the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in which he holds that the Johnstown flood was an unavoidable accident, properly described as "an act of God."

The case was an appeal from the judgment of Court of Common Pleas No. 4. of Philadelphia. It was brought to recover the value of two trunks and their contents delivered to the defendant company in Cincinnati for transportation to Washington. When the plaintiff presented his baggage checks at the defendant's station in Washington and asked for his trunks they were not delivered. This action was then brought.

The Coal Trust and Its Victims.

[N. Y. Editorial, February 18th, 1892.]

Are the people of the State of Pennsylvania in earnest in supporting the great coal trust because they think that the people of New York will be the chief sufferers?

It is true that nearly all the people of New York will suffer from this conspiracy to raise the price of fuel. It is true that the beneficiary of the conspiracy will be the great Pennsylvania corporation that has monopolized the coal properties of the State. But it is also true that the coa consumers of Pennsylvania will suffer from the tyranny of the trust.

It is the Pennsylvania idea, however, that capitalists and corporations, especially of that State, are of the first importance, and that consumers are persons who ought willingly and cheerfully to contribute to the enrichment of the special favorites of eleemosynarp laws. From the most conspicuous to the humblest citizen a great majority of Pennsylvanians assume this attitude. But when they say that New York will suffer and Pennsylvania will prosper, they forget that New York in this instance stands for all consumers of coal wherever they may dwell.

There are some people in Pennsylvania who have heretofore made manly and successful fights against similar conspiracies, Fortunately one of the these is Governor and another is Attorney-General of the State. Governor Pattison once took the initiative for the people, and it is to be hoped that he will not falter now. The idea that the State cannot interfere for the righting of a private wrong does not apply in this case. This combination is an assault upon the people, and the duty of the Governor is to protect both the people of his own State and those of other States who are assailed by lawless conspiracies existing in Pennsylvania.

As the York Pa., Gazette says: "There are some things about which a conscientious magistrate has no personal choice." The enforcing of obedience to the Constiturion of the State is one of them.

The Home Record of 1891.

[The Independent.]

The year just closed has been, perhaps, the most prosperous in the history of this country. So far from being plunged into all the commercial and financial disasters which the opponents of the McKinley bill predicted, all branches of business have been in a flourishing condition, and everybody has had plenty to eat, plenty to wear, and sufficient for other purposes. Of course much of this prosperity was due to the very abundant harvests which were gathered, and for the surplus of which there was an active demand from Europe. Both our exports and our imports were greatly increased, and there was a greater demand for labor in consequence of the increased demand for products of mills, which demand was in turn due to increased tariff rates on these products.

Howard Items

From our regular correspondent.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Joseph Poorman and Annie Forminger this evening.

Mrs. Parker has left for Williamsport to attend her brother who is seriously ill.

Allison brothers are cutting and hauling ice.

It was amusing to see Mr. J. Z. Long, pick himself out the ash pile yesterday and look around to see who saw him fall.

Hon. J. A. Woodward narrowly escaped being run over by a horse and road cart this morning.

Reciprocity.

Restricted Reciprocity is the logical out come of Protective principles.

In taking off the duty from a country's products we simply reciprocate for the remission of a duty which would otherwise operate against us.

Treaties have already been completed with five republic and nine colonies and and many others are under consideration.

Ups and Downs of Life.

Mrs. Firstfloor (Dekashion Flats)—Oh, Mrs. Secondfloor, is it true your son has married above him?

Mrs. Secondfloor (weeping)—Boo, boo! We're all disgraced. He's married—boo hoo!—a fifth floorer.—[New York Weekly.

NEARING THE CLOSE.

THE TRIAL OF GEORGE W. DELAMATER CONTINUED YESTERDAY.

At 9 O'clock in the Morning George A. Jenks Opened for the Defense in an Address to the Jury, in Which He Claimed That the Prosecution had Failed to Establish a Case Against the Defendant.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Feb. 20.—The court having yesterday ruled that G. B. Delamater and T. A. Delamater were to be no longer considered as defendants in the case now being tried against the firm of Delamater & Co., by reason of a lack of evid enceag inst them, the single defendant, George Wallace Delamater, was on hand with his counsel promptly at 9 o'clock, the hour fixed for the beginning of the presentation of the testimony for the defense. George A. Jenks opened for the defense by an address to the jury, during which he claimed their ability to show that the Delamater firm was not insolvent and that the remaining defendant, George Wallace Delamater, should be set free because the prosecution had failed to establish a case against the defendant Mr. Jenks presented a list of assets which he claimed represented $1,243,950 and who he said he expected to prove would have brought that amount had the failure not been precipitated.

Hon. George Wallace Delamater was then called by the defense. He explained to the court and jury upon what he balanced his estimates of the value of the several blocks of stock held by the firm. During his testimony Mr. Delemater declared his belief that the assignee would, after the stock has all been sold, be able to pay every dollar of the indebtdness due to the depositors. He explained that the securities owned by the firm had been pledged to various financial institutions in Philadelphia, New York and elsewhere as securities for loans made for the firm of Delamater. He also explained the valuation of the real and individual members thereof in Meadville and other sections of the state, and also in Ohio and reitirated his declaration that the firm was solvent at the time of the failure. The trial is rapidly approaching a conclusion and is likely to go the jury late to-morrow on Monday.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT AT BRADDOCK.

Three Men Terribly Burned at the Edgar Thomson Works.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Feb. 10.—A terribly accident occurred at the Edgar Thomson steel works by which four men four men were terribly burned. Three were so seriously injured that they cannot recover and the fourth was dangerously hurt. The men were in the casting pit. when a vessel of molten steel was accidently overturned. The metal was scattered in evary direction. A warning cry was given, but the men were unable to escape, and they were horribly burned before they could be rescued from the molten bath. The name of the three seriously injured are as follows: Charles Fisher, John McCaffrey and John Ward. Several other workmen were burned by the hot metal, but their injuries are not of a serious character. All of the injured named are single men and reside in Braddock. All the time of the accident the men were on a new elevated stand which had been erected in the casting pit. As soon as the metal struck the floor a cloud of steam envelope d the men and they were unable to find their way from the stand. The steam also prevented the other workmen in the mill from rescuing the men as soon as they would otherwise have done.

Was Taken This Morning.

This morning on the 5,35 train Mrr. William Musser, of this place, departed for Philadelphia, having in charge her little daughter Mary who she was taking to the hospital in that city. On Wednesday the News gave a full account of this unfortunate child's condition and the effort that was being made in her behalf and now we are glad to say that enough money has been raised, thanks to the efforts of the Misses Meek, to partly pay the expense of her treatment in the hospital, and there is every reason to believe that enough will be forthcoming to meet all the expense. It will cost nothing for her transportation to and from Philadelphia as the officials of the Pennsylvania railroad company have most generously furnished free transportation for her and her parents to and from that point. It is to be a permanent cure.

Our Telegraehic News.

We now have arrangements with the Press at New York by which we get the latest news every day. If our readers will watch our latest by wire, they will find news that comes next day in the New York papers. We are using this telegraph service for the benefit of our patrons and also to show the public we are trying to furnish a live paper. We fully realize that intelligent men take and pay for papers because of the value of the paper and not on account of friend ship for the publisher.

Marriage Licenses.

Jeremiah Martin and Katie V. Lose, both of Haines twp.

Albert Steininger and Eva G. Snyder both of Millheim.

Howard H. Every and Lula Stover both of State College.

John R. Mayers and Annie Grove both of Philipsburg.

ANOTHER DEATH TO CHRONICLE.

A GOOD WOMAN GONE HOME,

At 9.30 this morning the Angel of Death visited the home of our highly respected fellow townsman, Mr. Monroe Armor and took from the family circle the dearly beloved wife and mother and left a sorrowful mourning husband and five shildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Armor are too well known here and in this vicinity, to require any encomiums or eulogy on our part, still those that knew Mrs. Armor best, tell us that she was an examplary, noble, christian woman. Unwearied in her devotion to her family, her friends, her church, a true, kind, loving wife, and affectionate indulgent mother, an obliging neighbor, and an earnest, zealous christian. One of whom, no matter how much good we speak of, we cannot tell it all. Mrs. Armor's maiden name was Mary E. Dare. She leaves two sons and three daughters. The oldest son J. Benner Armor is attending school at Baltimore with a view of fitting himself for the priesthood, The other children Geo. W. Stella A. Grace M. and Louisa M. are at home with the bereaved father.

Mrs. Armor was a member of St. John's Catholic church at this place. The notice and particulars of the funeral will appear in Monday's issue.

Death.

George W. Tate one of the oldest residents or this place, died at his residence on Spring street at 10.30 last night aged 72 years.

Mr. Tate had lived in Bellefonte 50 years He leaves a widow and one danghter Miss Alice, who is very sick. She is not yet aware of her father's death. He also leaves two brothers D. K. Tate, of Bellefonte and H. B. Tate of Nippenose Valley, Lycoming county Pa., and two sisters Mrs. Mary Templeton also of Nippenose Valley and Mrs. Brown Lee, of Lock Haven. He was a member of the Methodist church and died in the triumphs of faith. Almost his last words were "I hav'nt a doubt of my acceptance with God, There are no clouds on the sky. I am only waiting for the Lord to call me. am ready and anxious to go. Funeral at the residence 10.30 Tuesday morning next,

—Mr. Nathan E. Markle, who lives one mile east of town will start on Monday next for Champaign County, Ill.

He is going in company with L. P. Hannigh. They are going to try farming on the big prairies of the big Corn State. Mr. Hannigh has been trying it there for 23 years and has learned how it goes.

But Mr. Markle has something to learn. They will raise crops the first year or two and after that probably try ro revise some big fat steers to ship back here to feed us poor fellows who have to stay here. They will go by way of Pittsburg and Indianapolis. As Mr. M. has never been west, he will probably be pleased, interested and instructed by the trip. His family of course go with him

Mr. Markle says to his friends, if you see fit to write to him, direct your letters to Fisher, Champaign County, Illinois.

Mayor Wyman Has Resigned.

James G. Wyman, at a meeting of Councils last night, tendered his resignataon as Mayor of the city of Allegheny. It was accepted, to go into effect February 24. On the following day the Mayor will be sentenced in the case on a charge of extortion, unless a new trial is granted. The resignation of Mr. Wyman carries with it the evidence that he will not insist on his motion for a new trial, and will depend on the mercy of the court.

It is stated on the best possible authority that the other cases against Mayor Wyman will not be pushed, and that the prosecution will ask the Court to be lenient. It is hoped by the Mayor's friends that only a fine will be imposed.

NOTICE.

A Good Time.

Mr. Oliver Whitmer, of Buffalo Run, having built a handsome new residence at that place, put the finishing thouches on in the shape of a house warming, Thursday evening, Feb. 18. There was a large number of people present, all of whom enjoyed a grand treat. Oliver is quite a favorite among the young people, and spared no pains in showing them a good time. His effort was certainly crowned with grand success.

In It Again.

Last night the society editor of the uptown clipper, attended a social at the home of Miss Jennie Brown and became so enraptured with the gay and attractive company, as to slightly lose his head, and in attempting to balance his equalibrium sailed through atmosphere till he struck the floor. Much anxiety was expressed as to his condition untill the invitation was given for supper, which revived him.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Tin Plates.

[From Iron and Sreel Trades Jonrnal, London England, Jan. 5, 1892.]

"There are many difficulties to be successfully coped with before they [the American] can manufacture tin plates wish commerical success in competition with this country, even with the help of the present import duty, which is equal to a bounty of from 60 to 90 per cent, on the price of the manufactured article in the country of production. The question of labor in the United States is the most difficult to be dealt with successfully. In Wales the adult work people have been engaged in the trade from childhood, and their children, as soon as capable, assist in the mills, It is. indeed, not an uncommon occurance to find whole families working together. The making of tin plates as the children grow to men and women becomes a habit, and they acquire great dexterity, saving much time and labor, and the wages of the female laborers and children are but a tithe of what American skilled workmen would demand."

The American laborer will still be fairhful to the mother and children. Womanhood in the United States must not be degraded, neither can American childhood be dwarfed to satisfy the old slave owner of this country or the greed of Englishmen in Eurode.

Parker, Feb. 19.— At a meeting of the Board of Trade this afternoon it was decided to order 1,000 pounds dynamite, which will arrive here early in the morning. Should a crash at the bridge occur an effort will be made to scatter it with the explosive. It is raining and a break is looked for before to-morrow.

A Brutal Murderer Hanged.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—William Smith, colored, alias "Hot Bill," was executed at Gretna to-day. The drop fell at 12.49 Smith committed a most brutal murder, his victim being an old white man named Domidick Commerce, over a difference about a little tobacco.

The Story Denied.

ST. PAUL, Minn. February 21.—Members of the democratic state central committee and those who are not identified with the North Star movement were not slow to pronounce the statement of Mr. Kynaston, who is credited in a Northfield-Minn. dispatch as predicting and an alliance democratic fusion this year in this state, as false in every particular, and they deny his authority to speak for the Minnesota democracy.

Bold And Successful Burglars.

Special to the NEWS.

NEW YORK Feb 20.

Dispatches from Susquehanna report a successful burglary at Sterns Point.

Early this morning burglars gained entrance to the Post office. blew open two safes and took all the valuable contents, valuable letters and then went through al the letter boxes and helped themselves to contents of the letters. They were experts, as they were certainly cool and deliberate and left nothing of value to them. They then visited Putman's store and went through that in the same manner. The amount taken is not yet ascertained.

The only clue to the robbers is they bought tickets at the station here for Great Bend. Detectives are at work on the case and the probabilities are the rascals will be overhauled.

Desperate Attempt To Wreck A Train.

Special to Daily News.

Bakerfield Cal. Feb 20, 1892.

Last night as the passenger train on the Southern Pacific was nearing El Paso. the engineer saw a small object lying on or near the track. It was too late to stop and the driving wheels passed over it. A most terrific explosion occurred filling the cab with flames and nearly killing the engineer and fireman, but fortunately no serious damage was done. The passengers were greatly excited as they feared that t was the work of train robbers. It probably was but it failed to work.

THE FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY.

To-day is the Nation's day. The 22d of February is in the annals of American history second only to the Fourth day of July. On the fourth day of July, 1776, our nation was born, and the anniversary of that day all true Americans revere, and well they should. It is right and proper that on that day, the pent up patriotism of the people of these United States should be released and given perfect freedom to manifest and display itself in accordance with the feelings of the celebrants. The bands may play, the military may turn out and parade, the guns may be fired, the flags may flutter and wave in the breeze, the rockets may soar skyward, the small boy may invest his pennies in heathen fire-crackers, and make all the noise he wants to, the orator may orate, the girls may don their white dresses, array themselves in red, white and blue, and represent the Goddess of Liberty and the forty-four States of the Union. Yes, we may all celebrate the day and rejoice, and why? Not only because our nation was born but also because it grew up to be a man, not merely a common man, but a giant. Our nation is to-day the grandest, freest, best and most glorious and prosperous nation on the globe, and we Americans are proud of our country. But while we celebrate and while we enjoy the blessings of liberty, we must not forget that after this declaration of independence was made, there remained much to be done, many years of bloody war, privations and suffering, before our country could take her place among the nations of the world. Our patriotic fathers required a leader, and that leader required a combination of traits of character, that but few men ever possessed. It was necessary that this leader should possess great wisdom, skill, courage, patriotism, patience, devotion to the cause, prudence, caution, energy, determination, tact and in addition to these mental qualifications, a physique capable of the greatest possible endurance' to enable him to lead the colonial armies to final victory. Such a leader Providence provided, and furnished the man for the place and time. On the 22d day of February, 1732, the immortal Washington was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia.

Thus, when the nation was born In 1776, there was a man ready to take charge of the infant nation and guide it through the vicissitudes of infancy and childhood to sturdy manhood. Providence had so arranged the time, that Washington was then forty four years of age, and in the full strength and vigor of unequaled manhood, in the prime of his life. Then the anniversary of his birth should be as dear to us, as the day on which our fathers declared they would no longer be subject to Great Britain.

Washington is the one, single name among the great names written on the pages of history, that is without blemish.

Taking his history, from his early boyhood down to its close, and we can find no public act of his, or private act either, that will not fully bear the closest scrutiny or criticism. The more closely we examine his character, the more fully we are convinced that he was in the superlative degree, honest, patriotic, able, pure, unbending and unflinching in his integrity and devotion to his country. The man, who gave eight years of his life, without pay or recompense, to the service of his country and stood firmly by her in all her dark hours of peril and danger, and then after she had triumphed over her enemies and secured her independence, refused the kingly crown and honors not only offered, but urged upon him, by many of his leading copatriots, and not only refused to be King himself but emphatically declared there should be no King in America, surely such a man is justly entitled to the revered name of "Father of his Country." When a boy we are told, he climbed the almost perpendicular bluff near the Natural Bridge in Virginia, and there cut his name in the rock several feet higher than any of his competitors were able to place their names. So as a man, he engraved his name on the pillar of fame, and deeper in the hearts of his countrymen, than any other mortal name. America can boast a galaxy of names of great men, but above and over all the other names is written the name of him, who was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen—our immortal Washington.

MAIL SERVICE.

Of no one thing, that belongs on the credit side of the books of President Harrison's Administration, have the republicans greater reason to be proud, than of the Post Office department under the magnificient management of Mr. Wanamaker. Never, during the history of our country, have so many facilities and so many conveniences been added to the postal service, in the same length of time.

The presidential post offices have increased in number 27 per cent and in ratings 30 per cent.

The second class 25 per cent. the third class about 60 per cent, and the fourth class offices almost 50 per cent, and there are now in our country over 64,000 post offices. Money order offices have increased from 5,857 to 10,775 almost 100 per cent. Free delivery offices have increased from 154 to 519 and the carrier force from 3,680 to 10,123. Fast mail lines have been added, revenues greatly increased. In fact all mail facilities have been multiplied and increased to a surprising degree. Mr. Wanamaker has in view several other reforms and changes that will greatly add to the efficiency of the department and at the same time reduce the expenses. The conveniences of the postal system have been placed within reach of the small towns and the country mail service is better than ever before. The Democrats harp about the cost, and have cried billion dollar congress because the fifty first congress provided the wants of the people; true the new managed Postal service cost the people $23,000,000. The money came into the treasury by revenue from custom duties or tariff, and was taken out and used for and by the people.

It has never been designed by our government to make the mail service self sustaining. Still Mr. Wanamaker says it could easily be made so by restricting the congressional franking prvileges and cutting off sample copies of newspapers and paper covered books He does not advise the latter, for our government desires that the people shall have all possible educational advantages, and books and papers are the principal mediums of information and all possible freedom should be granted to their circulation. But the expense of the ranks might, and properly should be charged to the respective departments instead of the post offices.

However that would be simply taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another. for the money must all come out of the general treasury. Mr. Wanamaker is entitled to great credit for the very able manner in which he has managed his department, and the people who have been so greatly benefitted surely must entertain kindly feelings for for him and a commendable pride in our Post Master Geueral.

THEY CAN HAVE THEIR CHOICE.

We notice an article under this head, in the Watchman of this week. The Watchman, pitches into a Democratic Paper published in North Dakota, "North west News" and gives the News a lecture for howling for, and making a great amount or noise about the necessiry of making the "Senatorial Governor' or "Gubernatorial Senator" the nominee.

The Watchman tells the News that he is talking too much for a fellow of his size. The News is informed that there is about as much chance of the Chicago nominee receiving an electoral vote in North Dakota as there will be of finding a republican politician playing the golden harp in glory, or in the great hereafter. And advises the News to not go into hysterics, over the Presidental question and not to abuse the world, the flesh and the devil, "The Printer's Devil." All of this from our stand point sounds like good advice from one brother to another. But as the advice was not intended for us, and as it is not our fight we forbear further comments, only were we the North Western News published in North Dakota, we would talk back to the Watchman, and possibly talk a little saucy. Our remarks would be on this line.

Mr. Watchman, how many more electoral votes will the Chicago Nominee receive in Pennsylvania than in North Dakota. You have been before the people for many years, grown old and gray in the service.

Still you have not been able to prevail on a single Pennsylvania elector, to cast his vote for a democratic nominee since 1856

How does that strike you? We are young and full of energy out here.

Some republican politician may possibly get to heaven and we possibly may get some electoral votes for the democratic nominee, if not for the one who will be named at Chicago, we hope to for the next one.

This is more than you can say for long ago your hopes gave way to despair, or if you still hope it is a "forlorn hope" This kettle of mush, is as much ours as yours, and we propose to stick our paddle in and stir the mush as much as we please, until we are told to stop by some body that can furnish at least one electoral vote for a democratic nominee.

THE IMPORTED FEVER.

Reports come from Philadelphia Chicago and Pittsburg that passengers from the emigrant ship Masilia, have found their way to those cities, and that there are more or less cases of Typhus fever in each city. The disease is described as being very contagious and fatal, and unless the authorities do everything in their power to pravent its spread, we may expect an epidemic all over the country.

This is but another result of the undesirable immigration mentioned lately in our columns. Among the immigrants arriving daily at our eaports, are bandits, robbers, thieves pickpockets, prostitutes and evil workers of all sorts and kinds.

It has been the policy of several European countries to empty their prisons, alms houses and lazar houses, and dump the inmates on our shores. Even England is accused of sihpping some of her worst class of paupers, over here, simply to get rid of them. This class of comers, has frequently supplied this country with contagioues, malignant and loathsome diseases.

Cholera, small pox, leprosy, ship fever etc, have been introduced at frequent intervals, and all by the scum and offscourings of European slums.

The emigrant ships are of them selves breeders of disease. The ignorant, vicious, filthy emigrants are crowded like cattle into the steerages where they huddle together in indescribable filth, and in such numbers, the wonder is they do not all die during the voyage. Certainly it is a wonder that any of them can be in good health when they arrive. The way they are treated is a disgrace to the steamship companies, and some regulation should be made and enforced that will abate this horrible nuisance

Surely there is no good reason why the lives of the American people should be endangered by the bludgeons and stilettoes, of villianous cut throats and also by terrible loathsome diseases all emanating and coming from the same source. Unless this class of immigrants are at once prohibited from coming here the conditions that prevail there, will assume control here.

A MOSQUITO'S BITE FATAL.

It Made a Surgical Operation Necessary and Under It the Boy Died.

Harry Randolph Daley, aged nine years, died at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, from the effect of a mosquito bite. He was bitten on the foot by a mosquito last summer while in Talbot County. The bite caused a slight swelling but no special inconvenience at the time.

About a week afterwards the boy complained of a pain in his foot. This was followed by a swelling which extended up the leg Soon the groin became affected and a swelling made its appearance, which grew slowly but surely.

Three weeks ago the boy's parents brought him to the hospital, and the surgeon in charge concluded that an operation was necessary. It was too late, however, The boy, weakened with pain, could not withstand the shock and died immediately afterward. It is the first case of the kind ever reported here.

What Caused Her Death.

Altoona Tribune.

The story of a strange and mysterious death, happening near Henrietta, on January 25, which had been carefully withheld by the officials therein connected from the general public, leaked out at Hollidaysburg last night. David Falkner, an aged and respected farmer of North Woodbury township, was taken suddently sick on that date. He summoned his family physician, Dr. J. H. Wengert, of Clover Creek, but before he could arrive death had intervened and summoned Mr Faulkner to his account. Previous to his dissolution he vomited violently. It seems that no public inquiry was made as to the cause of death. The usual funeral services were held and the remains were given decent sepulchre. Vague rumors, reports and stories about the attendant circumstances of the death were spead about the neighborhood. Coroner Poet, of this city, received a letter on February 8 relative to this case and on the evening following went to Henrietta and made inquiries before any further step were taken. The information gleaned warranted him to proceed in the case and on the evening of the 11th he went back and the body of the deceased was raised and the stomach taken out by Drs. Klepher and Wengert. On the morning of the 12th this portion of the body, hermetically sealed in a jar, was taken before Justice S. B. Lysinger at Martinsburg and the identity sworn to by the physicians. Given into the coroner's possession the jar never left that official's hands until it was taken to the University Hospital in Philadelphia where it was given into the charge of Dr. H. F. Formad, who is now subjecting it to a chemical analysis. The jury empanelled by the coroner is now awaiting the result of the examination before rendering a verdict.

The deceased was about 65 years of age and twice married. By his first wife he leaves three children and his death occurred before the honeymoon of he second marriage had waned.

How it Was Celebrated in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb., 22.—Washington's birthday was generally observed here. Business was suspended and nearly all the business houses in lower Pittsburgh, South Side and Alleghany were decorated. The day was bright and warm and large crowds filled the streets. In the afternoon the Junior Order of United American Mechanics paraded the lower streets, 8,000 strong, and the senior order paraded 1,000 men in the last end. In the evening there was a banquet of the Loyal Legion at the Duquesne club.

Dynamite Explosion.

Special.

Lexington, Va. Feb. 23, 1892.

A premature blast at the limestone quarries at Lowmoor last night badly injured several workmen, John G. Shivett division line inspector Western Union Telepraph was terribly injured. His eyes were blown out and both legs broken will probably die before night. The workmen were using dynamite, and by some mismanagement the blast went off without warning. Several men were standing near, and the wonder is that more were not killed.

Serious Railroad Accident.

Special to the News

Pittsburg Feb 23. 1892.

The St. Louis express at 2 o'clock a. m. struck another train with a pleasure party on board, demolishing one car.

Three persons killed and several seriously injured. The killed are Alice Gaskill, of Swissvale, killed instantly, Wm. Dewar died at hospital, Milton Zeigler; of Wilsonburg dying, probably now dead.

Cause of collision not learned.

Lewes, Del., Feb. 24,—The steamship Indiana, from Philadelphia for Libau, with supplies for starving Russians, passed to sea at 1 a. m. yesterday.

TWENTY-SIXTH ENCAMPMENT

PITTSBURGH RAPIDLY FILLING UP WITH GRAND ARMY MEN.

A Gathering Which is Expected to be One of the Largest Ever held in the State —The Candidates for the Offices are Doing Hard Work.

Pittsburgh, February 23.—There will be fully 900 delegates at the twenty-six annual encampment of the Pennsylvania department of the Grand Army of the Republic which convenes in the Pittsburgh Grand opera house to-morrow morning. Delegates began to arrive yesterday and to-day and every train brought scores while visitors and friends attracted by the occasion came by hundreds. It is expected that this will be the largest encampment in point of numbers held and certainly one of the most important. Among the distinguished members who arrived to-day were: Department Commander George G. Boyer, of Harrisburg; Hon. Samuel B. Losch, General S. P. Taylor, of Philadelphia; General J. P. S. Gobin, General Robert B. Beath, of Philadelphia; John Taylor, receiver of taxes, Philadelphia; Major J. B. Morris, of Mt. Morris, and Hon. Horatio B. Hackett, of Philadelphia.

National Commander Palmer, following the custom of the national executive of the Grand Army, will attend the opening session of the department encampment tomorrow and will make an address. There will be no contest except in one instance for department officers. The candidates are as follows: Department commander, John P. Taylor, of Lewistown; senior vice commander, W. O. Russelll, of Pittsburgh, south side; junior vice commander, J. N. Swoger, of Philadelphia, J. A. Calvin, commander of Colonel W. G. Murray post 39, of Hollidaysburg, "which honors the name of the first Pennsylvania colonel to fall in the war." Besides the above officers nominations will be made to-morrow for the council for administration and delegates of the national encampment.

There are two very important matters to come up before the encampment. One is a resolution requesting the government to purchase the remainder of the twenty-five miles of the Gettysburg survey and maintain it as it does the National park on the Chicamauga battlefield. The other is the right of precedence at the Washington parade of September 20.

Department Commander Boyer said concerning the Gettysburg field: "The members of the Grand Army are growing old and they think the government should bear the burden of maintenance and care of the Gettysburg battlefield. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are invested in monuments at Gettysburg and should be carefully protected. The monuments must crumble from time to time, and they should be looked after and preserved or replaced. The government alone can guarantee that such care shall be excrcised for a long period of years." The eastern delegates are angry and when National Commander General Palmer arrives tomorrow will probably let him understand it and plainly, too.

General Palmer has assigned the survivors of the Sixth Massachusetts the place of honor at the head of the great Grand Army parade to be held in Washington on the 20th of September. Major James Wier, of Boyerstown, Berks county, who is in Pittsburg, claims that the honor should belong to the "First Defenders," and they came from Pennsylvania. Hon. Samuel B. Losch said to-day that the first companies to reach Baltimore were two from Pottsville, two from Reading. one from Allentown, and one from Lewistown. Nicholas Biddle, a colored man from the Pottsvill regiment, was struck by a stone from the mob, and was taken to Washington, where his blood fell on the marble floor of the capitol. He was the first person hurt. The "First Defenders," therefore, claim that if any people outside of the Grand Army are to be designated to the post of honor it should be themselves. Congress had decreed that they were the first to reach Washinglon, and Pennsylvania has given them medals in commemoration of their patriotism.

NINE LIVES SAVED BY A DOG.

A Massachusetts Family Threatened with Suffocation by Coal Gas.

Lowell, Mass., Feb. 23.—A family of nine were saved from suffocation Sunday by a little dog. The family retired Saturday night, leaving a good fire in the coal stove, but the father forgot to open the draughts. Several hours later the dog ran about the house whining, and finally sprang on the bed and licked the faces of the sleepers. Two sisters awoke choking and gasping, and fell senseless to the floor. All were overcome except the mother, who got the window open and then carried the younger children down stairs one by one. All are now out of danger.

Unlawful to Give Free Passes.

Wasaington, Feb. 23.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day announced its decision in the case of William H. Harvey against the Louisville and Nashville railroad company, involving the giving of free passes and free transportation, and the commission decides that action of the defendant in granting to members of the Oity Council of New Orleans and clerk of that body, on account of their official positions, free transportation as passengers over all or some portion of its interstate lines, a violation of the act to regulate commerce, and is unlawful.

"What's that? A new invention which works all the year round? Surprisin'—these days are not like the old times. Bleedin' was the only remedy them days. But now, as you say, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a true remedy for the blood."

It's not like the sarsaparillas, that are said to be good for the blood in March, April and May. The "Golden Medical Discovery" works equally well at all times, in all seasons and in all cases of blood-taints, or humors, no matter what their name or nature.

"Golden Medical Discovery" is the only Blood and Liver medicine, sold by druggists, guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case, on fair trial, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Died of the Grip.

MEADVILLE, Pa. Feb. 22.—A. McLean White, a prominent citizen and retired business man, died to-day of la grippe, complicated with Bright's disease, after an an illness of ten days. Mr. White was formerly connected with the dry goods firm of H. B. Claflin & Co., New York, where he acquired a handsome competency. He leaves a wife and one son, J. Frank White, station agent in this city for the P. S. & F. E. railway.

Riot at a P. O. S. of A. Parade.

Special to the DAILY NEWS.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb., 23.—A special to the Inquirer from Sunbury, Pa., says that a district convention and parade of the Patriotic Orders Sons of America, with 1,000 men in line, occurred to-day, and that a riot was precipitated in which three men were badly injured. The police were unable to quell the tumult and were obliged to call citizens to their aid.

WHAT IS

SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Nauright, N. J.

REID HAS AGREED TO WAIT.

He Will Not Resign Until the Reciprocity Treaty is Concluded.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—The report that United States Minister Reid has resigned is denied at the state department. It is said on excellent authority that Mr. Reid has agreed to continue his diplomatic services until a reciprocity treaty has been concluded between France and the United States.

Denied the Report.

WASHINGTON, February 21.—Secretary Foster was asked to-night whether there was any truth in the published report that a meeting is to be held at his residence Monday morning between himself, Senator Teller, Senator Aldrich and other prominent public men, representing both side of the silver question for the purpose of effecting a compromise by which the administration will lend its efforts to the calling of an international monetary conferencd of republican senators who favor free coinage will agree to prevent the passage of the free coinage bill at this session of congress. The secretary replied that there was nothing in the report and told the reporter he could deny it on his (the secretary's) authority. Senators Teller and Aldrich are both out of the city and neither are expected to return to-morrow. This the secretary referred to as evidence that there can be no meeting between himself and the senators named to-morrow as he himself expects to leave the city in the afternoon for New York, enroute to Europe.

Youthful Replies.

One of our school commissioners inspected a down-town public school the other day and examine several girls.

Commissioner—Now, I will ask you to tell me the parts of speech of some words you have just read. What part of speech is "Mary Ann!"

Little Girl—Noun, sir.

"What kind of a noun?"

"Common noun."

"Pray, why do you call "Mary Ann" a common noun?"

"Because there are so many Mary Anns sir."

The Commissioner smiled and observed to the teacher that the answer ought to pass. On another occasion the Commissioner inquired: "You say that all the rivers flow into the sea. Why, then, does not the sea become too full and overflow with all the waters from all the rivers?' The youth addressed eagerly replied: "Because the fishes drink the water, sir."

HILL ON DECK.

David B, Hill, ex-Governor, of New York and present Senator from that State instead of being in Washington attending to his Senatorial duties in New York is trying to force himself upon the people as the Democratic nominee for the Presidency. To-day is the day that the Hill convention meets at Albany to elect delegates to the national convention, and by to-morrow we will know how well Mr. Hill's scheme has worked.

It makes but little difference to Hill. He may force the N. Y. delegation, but it is not probable that he can carry any other State. He knows that, but with him, it is anything to beat Cleveland.

Secretary Blaine has cabled to Minister Smith at St. Petersburg that on Monday, February 22, the steamship Indiana will leave Philadelphia freighted with food and clothing as the gift of Philadelphians to the starving peasants of Russia. The vessel was placed at the service of the good people of the Quaker city by the International Steamship Company after the picayune Fifty-second congress had refused to charter ship for the purpose. Other cities should follow the example of generous Philadelphia.

Speaker Crisp is evidently arranging to pay off his obligation to Senator Hill for services rendered in the speakership fight by trying to swing Georgia into line for him, The Atlanta Constitution has already declared for Hill and the next important paper in the state, the August Chronicle, now drops Cleveland and hoists the name of Hill. If the late Henry W. Grady were living there would not be much show for Hillism in Georgia.

A Word About Catarrh.

It is the mucus membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals and renders life a longdrawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammeling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insiduously by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membraneous linings and envelopes the bones, eating the delicate coats and causing inflamation, slaughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient and all lleviates are simply procrastinated sufferings leading to a fatal termination. Dr. Salm has by a trial at ent local and constitutional, made the cure of this dread disease a certainty, and has never ailed. Even when the disease had made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered and the disease thoroughly driven out.

He Rode the Rail.

NEW BRIGTON, Pa., February 22.—At 7 o'clock last night as people were going to church, Andrew Thomas, white about 20 years old, and a colored woman weighing 200 pounds, walked down Broadway both so drunk they took up the whole pavement. The street was crowded with people going to church. When the couple reached First street about twenty young man rushed at them and taking Thomas, placed him on a rail and rode him all over town, followed by a great crowd. Thomas and the woman were afterward arrested and placed in the lockup.

Glass Workers May Unite.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—Indications point to the early consolidation or affiliations of the Green Glass Blowers union and the American Flint Glass Workers union. The annual meetings of the organizations will take place at the same time in July and each will be held in New York State, the "flints" at Corning and the "greens" at Rocheste. It is believed that the two conventions have been arranged in such close proximity for the purpose of allowing committees to confer on the matter should any be appointed.

A Marriage Causes Queer Relationships.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 21.—Sixty-five-year-old George Smiley, of Harrisburg, has just married 37-year-old Miss Annie V. Carman of Southeastern Missouri, in this city. The bride is the youngest sister of the wife of T. M. Smiley, son of George Smiley, and by this peculiar union the bride becames the mother-in-law of her elder sister and the latter the daughter-in-law of her youngest sister. The father and son brothers-in-law. The five children of T. M. Smiley, (the son) are now the grand children of their late aunt.

The Delamater Case.

MEADVILLE, Feb. 22.—The court occupied until 5 p. m. to-day in hearing applications for licenses, consequently the Delamater case was not taken up except to hear arguments on the part of the defense for striking out that part of the evidence brought out by the prosecution on Saturday relating to an alleged conversation between G. W. Delamater and the committee of the creditors concerning the value of the Delamater assets. Pending the decision of the court an adjournment was taken until to-morrow morning.

A TRIO OF ROBBERS.

One is Captured and Makes a Confession Implicating the Others.

From the Commercial Gazette.

CORRY, Pa., Feb. 19.—For two years there have been many robberies in Warren county, the crimes embracing highway robbery, breaking railway depots, and railway cars. In many instances the Pennsylvania company has been a heavy loser. A couple of days ago while attempting a highway robbery at Magraw village the robbers were pursued by officers nearly all night in the direction of Corry.

To-day a man named Lewis, one of the gang, was brought through here on the way to jail. He was caught at Garland yesterday, and made a confession implicating two other young men in the series of crimes. The young fellows got word of the confession, and early this morning purchased tickets here for Mitchell, S. D., and left. The captured robber says the trunks they took with them to Dakota contained valuables stolen in this section for months past. An effort will be made to head them off.

May Result Fatally.

From the Altoona Tribune.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., February 21.—Casper Myers, a well known contractor in mason work in this place, was struck by the north bound train on the Huntingdon and Broad Top railroad last night a short distance above the station and fatally injured. Mr. Myers was superintending the construction of a new culvert for the Pennsylvania railroad company near the foot of Sixth street. While returning to his work after supper he stepped from the south track on the Pennsylvania railroad, in front of an approaching train, to the parallel track on the Broad Top road. He failed to notice the approaching Broad Top passenger train and was struck by the engine. Besides receiving many body bruises he sustained two fractures to the skull. The seriousness of one of the fractures rendered necessary the removal of a portion of the skull bone. Since the accident Mr. Myers has had but few rational moments, and from the nature of his wounds his death is regarded as a matter of only a few hours.

Latest From Hill's Convention.

Special to Daily News.

Albany N. Y. Feb. 22, 1892.

The crowd at Albany is simply tremendous. The Hill men at their headquarters and the Cleveland men at theirs are as distinctively opposed to each other as Republicans and Democrats in the New York legislature.

Geo. M. Beeber was elected temporary chairman and Gen Dan'l Sickles elected permanent chairman.

It is reported that Lockwood from Buffalo, heretofore a strong Cleveland man is willing and offers to go as delegate at large and will second the nomination of Hill. The Cleveland men presented their protest, and it was unanimously tabled by the convention. The convention is Hill pure and simple.

The Bold Bad Man From The West Owns up.

Special to the NEWS

Lyons N. Y. Feb 22, 1892.

A man giving his name as W. M. Cross of New Mexico, made thing lively yesterday on a central Hudson train. He shot the expressman, robbed the safe, drove the crew from another train with his revolvers, captured the engine, was chased by another engine on a parallel track, kept up a running fight for miles, and finally left the engine, went across fields to a farmers, forced a team from him, was finally overtaken and captured. He confesses he is Oliver Curtis Perry who not long ago robbed the express traine at Utica. He is certainly a desperate nervy chap.

To Withdraw One Ticket.

NEW ORLEANS, February 21.—The compromise proposition submitted to the two democratic central committees by the joint conference committee has been ratified by both sides. The principal point of the agreement as already stated is the submission of the McEnery and Foster tickets to the primaries, the winning ticket to be the regular democratic ticket at the general election, the other to be withdrawn.

Did No Damage.

PITTSBULGH, Pa., February 21.—The Parker ice gorge reached here about daylight and caused a raise in the river of three feet in an hour, but the ice was badly broken by its long journey and it passed down the Ohio river without doing much damage.

THIEVERY AND INCENDIARISM

IT WAS DISCOVEEED JUST IN TIME

The Store of W. H. Miller on Chestnut Avenue Entered by Unknown Parties Who Frst Robbed the Till and Tlen Built a Fire in the Room.

One of the boldest robberies which has yet occurredin Altoona and one of the most daring as well as almost successful attempts at incendiarism was that which took place last nigh at the store of W. H. Miller, Chestnut avenue, near Tenth street.

The discovery that something was wrong was made at ten minutes of 10 o'clock by some of the inmates of the boarding house of Mr. Ed. Hoine, one door west of the store. An investigation was promptly set on foot. An attempt to get into the store from the rear led to the discovery that it had already been entered and the door opened without any trouble.

Once inside the building the further discovery was made that there had been a deliberate attempt to set the place on fire. In the wareroom, which is in the rear, is a tank which holds about two barrels of oil. Within three feet of it two empty barrels had been placed after being brought from the outside of the building. So also was a box. In the barrels had been shoved a lot of old bags and the entire thing was set on fire.

When the alarm was raised and the people went in the staves of one barrel were found to be badly charred and the the bags had been reduced to ashes. The Excelsior hose company house was called on and several of the members of the company responded, but beyond the throwing of several buckets of water on the flames there was no necessity for the firemen to enter upon active duty.

The money drawer is in the front part of the store. It is located not more than fifteen feet from the front entrance to the building, and the thief or thieves had broken it open and secured several dollars for their trouble. There is bnt a slight clue as to the certainty of the persons who were guilty of this act of outlawry, but this clue will be worked for all that it is worth in the hope that the guilty parties may be brought to justice.—Altoona Tribune.

To Relieve the Russians.

WASHINGTON, February 18.—A delegation of Philadelphians called on Secretary Blaine this morning at the state department to secure assistance in the movement to send flour to the starving peasants of Russia. The delegation was heard by Mr. W. M. Potter and represented a committee that has been formed in Philadelphia for this charitable object. Mayor Stuart is the chairman of the committee, but was unable to come to Washington. The secretary was informed that the steamship Indiana would sail from Philadelphia on the 23d inst., loaded with flour, donated by citizens, in charge of Mr. Randolph Blakenburg, and it was requested that instructions be sent to Minister Smith, at St. Petersburg, and through him to the American consul in Russia to give Mr. Blankenburg all possible aid in the landing and distribution of the flour. In responce to their representations Secretary Blaine sent the following telegram to Hon, Charles Emory Smith, United States minister at St. Petersburg:

"The American steamship Indiana, laden with flour for Russia, will sail on the 22d inst. probable for Libau, possible for Rigo. See that the American consul or some fit person, if there be one, shall co-operate with Mr. Blankenburg, who goes as the agent to take care of and distribute the gift.

(Signed) J. G. BLAINE.

The Twenty-fourth Distrct Republicans Meet.

PITTSBURG. February 18.—A committee of each country in the Twenty-fourth congressional district met at the Hotel Duquesne, in this city, to-day, and fixed April 19 as the date and Pittsburg as the place for holding the convention to nominate a republican candidate for congress, a candidate for presidential elector and two delegates to the republican national convention at Minneapolis. P. S. Neumyer of Fayette, presided. It was decided that the representation should be based upon the vote cast in each country for Harrison in 1888, one delegate being alloted to each country for each 600 votes and one additional delegate for each fraction exceeding half thereof. The allotment decided upon was: Allegheny 18, Washing-16, Fayette 14, Greene 6.

Relating to Protesting Notes.

WASHINGTON, February 18.—Representative WRIGHT, of Pennsylvania, to-day introduced in the house a bill making the provision of the revised statistics of the United States relating to the mode of protesting notes of national banks, etc., apply to all national bank notes that have been or may be received by any national bank whatever, Such notes are alleged to have been lost or stolen and put in circulation, with or without forged signatures.

A Wilksbarre Failure.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., February 18.—The Pennsylvania Metallic Cornice Manufacturing company, in this city, made a general assignment this afternoon to Attorney George P. Loomis for the benefit of their creditors without preference. They have been compelled to take this course by reason of great difficulty in making their collections. It is believed that the suspensions will only be temporary if the proper arrangements can be made by the creditors. This concern was always supposed to be a large one and on a solid basis. There is to be a meeting of the New York, Philadelphia and other creditors here next Wednesday.

Origin of our Protective Tariff.

On the third day of the first session of the first Congress of the United States after the adoption of the National Constitution, James Madison of Virginia offered a resolution reciting that specific duties should be levied on all importations of spirituous liquors, molasses, wines, teas, sugars, pepper, cocoa and spices; and an advalorem duty on all other articles; and also a tonnage duty on all American vessels in which merchandise was imported and a higher tonnage rate on all foreign vessels. Accordingly the second act passed by this first Congress, inspired by Madison, supported by Hamilton, and approved by Washington, was a tariff act. The preamble of this act declared that it was "necessary for the support of the government, for the discharge of the debt of the United States, and the encouragement and profection of manufactures that duties be laid." This act combined revenue with protection as every successful tariff act must. It embodied every feature of the protective doctrine. It had a free list, specific duties, and advalorem rates. some goods were taxed more and some less, and it discriminated so as to encourage and protect our own industries. Both in name and in form it was a protective tariff.

We aer often reminded that those were the pnre and patriotic days of the republic when the founders of the government were only intent on the public good, and partisan greed of office did not hinder wise legislation. It is well, therefore, to remember that a protective tariff originated with, and was first applied by the fathers of the Constitutions, whv may well be credited with an understanding is its powers and purpose.

Under the benign influence of this protective tariff our revenues were made ample to meet the requirements of the treasury, our manufacturing industries were planted and fostered, our national credit established, and our country freed from the productive vassalage which had so persistently been enforced upon us as colonies, and from which the Confederation was powerless to deliver us W. W. CURRY.

Why Edison Is a Republican.

The father and brother of the great electrical inventor, Thomas A Edison, were Democrats. Some one recently asked him to explain how he happened to be a Republican when his environment was Democratic.

"I will tell you all about it in a very few words," said he. "I became a Republican in New Orleans. It was on a street corner where there was a poor devil in a blue uniform grinding an organ. He was blind in one eye. He had a big scar above the other eye. One his of ears was slashed off. One leg was cut off below the knee. The other leg was severed above the knee. His left arm was cut off above the elbow. His right hand was mutilated so that only the little finger remained. With that finger he turned the organ handle and brought forth doleful tunes. A big brute of a Southerner came along and stopped in front of thd organ, looking the crippled soldier all over. Then he drew a ten dollar bill out of his pocket and tossed it on the organ. As he started away the old soldier called after him to know if he had not made a mistake, saying that no man had ever given him a bill before. The Southerner turned about with a fierce look and responded that he was willing to give $10 any time to see a Yankee sliced up like the organ grinder, because that was the way he would like to see every blankety blanked Yankee carved up. Well that incident made a Republican of me."

Damaging Evidence Against the Delamaters.

MEADVILLE, Pa., February 18.—At this morning's session of the Delamater trial two witnesses gave some damaging evidence as to the methods of oing business during the closing days of the institution. They were Mr. Hall and L. L. Lord, bnsiness men of the city. Both testified that they had paid to Victor M. Delamater drafts on them by New York and Pittsburg firms. Afterwards both received notice from the firms who had made the drafts that the money had not been received. Mr. Hall testified that he asked Victor Delamater on November 27 about the matter and was told he would look it up. The money was not forwarded on either collection before the bank failed. Victor Delamater, the cashier, was recalled. He acknowledged having received the money of both collections and had not forwarded either collection to drawer of drafts before the failure.

Let us Have Fair Play.

Copied from the Local News.

EDITOR LOCAL NEWS:—As you frequently give space in your paper to the temperance people to publish the most disparaging things against our business, we trust therefore as a matter of justice and fairness that you will allow us a small space in your paper to represent our interests, and give a word of comfort or encouragement to liquor dealers. And I would say just here for the satisfaction of all who may be interested in the liquor business that there has perhaps been no time in the history of Huntingdon county when the prospects of the liquor trade was more encouraging than to-day.

It will be remembered that all the licenses applied for last year, with but one exception were granted, notwithstanding remonstrances largely signed, were filed in each and every case.

And as we have the same judges now that we had a year ago, we see no reason why any one should have trouble in procuring a license to sell liquor this coming year.

And as the court so completely ignored the remonstrances filed by the temperance women last year, it is not at all likely that remonstrances will be filed against any who may apply the present year I think it would be a good idea to have at least one saloon in every little town or village in the county; this would strengthen our business very much.

There certainly will be no trouble in securing a license now in the smallest village in the county, if they will only apply.

Some may hesitate to apply for license fearing they might violate the license law and get into trouble. But there is no danger of this. While it might be a little dangerous in Huntingdon connty to keep a speak easy, I think that after a man has once secured a lincense he is perfectly safe to sell liquor to whom he pleases, this has been tested.

And I tell you the jury commissioners could do a good deal for our business too, if they would only do it. That is by placing as many names as possible in the jury wheel who would likely favor the liquor traffic.

Another thing, too, I believe, would help our business. If we could have one or two more breweries in the county then we could manufacture all our own liquor. This would keep the money at home.

As a rule the liquor trade is a business that recommends itself. It is unnecessary for us, like other dealers, to have show cases, and show windows to exhibit our goods. We can draw the curtains and screens around them and sell them all the same, neither do we have to advertise in the public papers that we have such or such liquors for sale. All we ask for is a license to sell liquor. Then we haye no trouble in disposing of our goods. This should be a sufficient recommendation of the business itself without one writing in its favor.

This is the first article that has been written in favor of our business in the county for a long time. And no doubt the temperance people will make a fuss about it, but we can't help it, all we ask for is FAIR PLAY.

Relics of the Revolution.

Two connon balls have been found at the Glen Mills (Penn.) stone quarries, imbedded in rock about twenty feet below the surface. About eight feet of this covering was solid rock, and the remainder was earth in which trees and underbrush had grown.

It is supposed that the balls have been there since the Revolution, and probably about the time the battle of the Brandywine was fought. Chaddsford, the scene of the battle, is about four miles distant —[New York Times.

They May Strike.

PITTSBURGH, Februrary 18,—The Columbian Iron and Steel company, of Uniontown, has not yet given an answer in regard to the withdrawal of the twenty-five per cent. reduction announced several days ago. The workers will probably decide to strike if the demand is insisted upon. An answer is expeccted from the firm within a day or so.

Senator Quay Very Sick.

Special to the NEWS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.

Dispatches from Philadelphia state that Senator Quay is much worse than at first supposed. The physicians greatly fear pneumonia.

First report was that he had taken a slight cold and hoped it would readily yield to proper treatment. But the difficulty has proved very stubborn and he is now seriously ill. His son Richard says he has not improved and is not improving as his friends had hoped.

Minister Reed Resigns.

Special io the NEWS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.

A cable dispatch from Paris, signed by Gaubis of the French cabinet, states positively, that our Minister to France, Hon. Whitelaw Reid, has resigned and will leave Paris for America on the 27th of this month. Reason for resignation not given.

WARNED IN TIME.

People will have themselves largely to blame if the horrid grip secures a foothold here this winter. The Board of Health sounded a note of warning a few days ago. Physicians all agree that with proper precautions the disease may be prevented. Aged and enfeebled persons, in fact any one whose systems is run down, require a healthful stimulant just now. The medical faculty are a unit upon this point. Klein's "Silver Age" and "Duquesne" rye whiskies which sell respectively at $1.50 and $1.25 per full quart are the purest and best stimulant known. The most skilled practitioners in the country indorse and prescribe these brands and leading hospitals use them exclusively. Major Klein also sells Guckenheimer, Finch, Gibson, Overholt and Bear Creek at $1 per quart or six quarts for $5. His establishment is headquarters for everything in the liquor line. ### The Cutler Creek Gold Strike.

Special to the News.

OURAY, COL. Feb. 20, 1892.

The Cutler Creek gold strike appears to be genuine. More than 100 claims staked in the last twenty-four hours. The county is under snow and it is speculation to-day what the result will be. Many of the boulders when broken open are flecked with gold and some of them run by assay nearly 100 ounces to a ton.

MCKINLEY BILL IN BROOKLYN.

A Splendid Showing for One Year—Something for Workingmen to Think About

The report of the Brooklyn Department of Buildings for 1891, says the New York Press, pays an unconscious tribute to the McKinley bill which, however, is not referred to directly or indirectly. It shows that during 1891, the year following the passage of the bill, that no less than 276 factories and workshops were erected or projected. This is the largest number in he history of Brooklyn, which ranks third as a manufacturing centre. One of the factories will be devoted to the manufacture of tin, and 500 men will be employed in it. During 1890, before the McKinley bill was passed, forty-four factories and 169 workshops were projected or built. The increase of 1891 over that of 1890 was sixty-three workshops and factories,

Why Should America Import Horses?

If there is any country in the world that ought to be able to raise all the horses needed certainly the United States is that country; but in the year 1888 62,411 horses were imported into the United States, while but 2,263 were exported, leaving us to purchase that year the surplus, 60,000. The old tariff laid a duty of 20 per cent, advalorem on a valuation of $45 per head, equal to nearly $10; hence Canadian and other horse raisers could afford to pay $600,000 in the form of tariff tax for the privilege of competing with American breeders of horses. In order to prevent this competition in the future the McKinley bill proposes to have them pay $30 per head. Under the opeaation of the McKinley bill the American farmers or producers of horses will have not only the benefit of the $600,000 paid as duty, but of the $5,000.000 paid in addition thereto, making in all $4,600,000 of an increase to the American produces in one item alone of the McKinley bill.

Captured by the Hill Men

Special to the NEWS.

NEW YORK. Feb. 19.

The delegates to the State Convention elected at the primaries in Brooklyn and New York last night may be classified as Hill men. Tammany had five Assembly primaries with three delegates, making fifteen in New York, and in Brooklyn there are thirty-six delegates elected, making a total of fifty-one Hill delegates elected.

Disrespect That Doesn't Count.

"It is strange how disrespectfully a woman will speak of her husband. Mrs. Mrs. Loverlycalled her husb and a poor fool the other day."

"Oh impossible! She just adores him."

"It is a fact, She was speaking of their courtship and she said: John was just breaking his heart thinking he would never get me, and I was in love with the poor fool all the time.

The Behring Sea Controversy Under Consideration.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The Behring sea controversy was the principal topic of discussions at to-day's cabinet meeting. There is no particular change in the situation and none is looked for until Lord Salisbury acts on the treaty of arbitration, a draft of which drawn on lines understood to be equally acceptable to both governments was submitted to him early this week.

—Isn't it about time for the press to begin discussing the probabilities of the year's fruit crop.

—Mr. Joe Fury editor of the Lock Haven Democrat is still confined to his room at that place. His many friends unite in wishing for his speedy recovery.

—There will be a sociable at the residence of Mr. Frank B. Stover, on High street this evening for the benefit of the Lutheran church. All are cordially invited to be present.

—Now that the spring election is over everything in politics will move along in the same old humdrum way until the time for the Presidential nominations draws near, then look out for breakers.

—There was an accidental explosion of dynamite on the section of the new railroad near Carroltown, Cambria Co., about 8 o'clock yesterday morning by which seven men were more or less seriously injured.

—Beilefonte is fixed for the coming Fourth of July in the P. O. S. of A. picnic to be held here, but it is about time some of the surrounding villages, Lock Haven, Tyrone, Philipsburg, etc., are looking up an attraction for that day.

—G. R. Weiler's family, of Lewistown, were driven from their home a few evenings ago by a drunken tramp and the neighbors had to be called before he tould be could be got rid of. A good club in the hands of an expert might tend to lessen this nuisance.

—We congratulate onr young editorial brother, Mr. Fred Kurtz, Jr., on his election to the office of Chief Burgess of the borough of Centre Hall. If he succeeds in making for himself as clean an administration as he turns out a nice looking newspaper, he will certainly deserve the commendation of all the voters of that borough.

—When you go to Lock Haven, and went to enjoy the benefit of a good meal and pleasant accommodations, be snre and stop at the Irvin House. The proprietor, Mr. Cladwell, Clintou county's treasurer, is one of the best landlord's in the state, and the Irwin is among the few first-class holels to be found in Clinton county.

—Mr. A. B. Lucas, of C. C. Shuey's grocery store, returned on Thursday evening from Cedar Springs, where he had been in attendance at the funeral of his niece, Miss Jessie Lucas, who died on Tuesday evening after an illness of only nine days; the cause of her death being Typhoid pneumonia, Miss Jessie was aged about seventeen years and her death was a sad blow to her friends as she was a most winsome and bright young lady.

—The members of the Lutheran church held a sociable at the residence of Frank B. Stover, on High street Thursday evening Feb. 18. The object of the social, was to raise money for church purposes, and it proved a complete success, as nearly every article offered for sale, was disposed of at fair prices. One of the most interesting features of the evening was a large orange tree, bearing a prize orange which was drawn by Mr. Emanuel Brown.

—On next Monday a week Bellefonters will be treated to a novel entertainment in the appearance in this place of Bristol's Eques-Curriculum, or in plain words a n exhibition of thirty of the finest and best trained horses to be found in the United States. Mr. Bristol travels in his own train of palace cars, carrying thirty horses and twenty-five people, including one of the finest bands and orchestras on the road. They will be in Bellefonte two days, giving two night exhibitions and one matinee. Of course everybody will want to see this marvelous exhibition when it appears in Bellefonte.

—It now looks as if Francis Lingo, the colored man, who has become notorious from having figured conspicuously in two murder trials, in each case as the defendant, and in the last of which he was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Mrs. Miller near Trenton, New Jersey, will have to hang. Every effort possible has been made to save the man's neck but of no use, as on Thursday the Supreme Court of New Jersey refused to interfere in his behalf. Lingo's lawyers will make one more attempt to save him by carrying his cause to the court of appeals, but they almost admit that they fear defeat from that source. In this case we think that justice will only be righted when Lingo dances on the atmosphere and adorned with a necktie of hemp.

—If you want a good paper, one that leads always, never follows; that gives the latest and best local and telegraph news, you must take the DAILY NEWS. We were the first in Centre county to give the full returns of Tuesday's election; we give telegraph news 24 hours ahead of the Philadelphia or Pittsburgh papers—we are enabled to do this by having a special wire service direct from New York giving all the important happenings up to 2 o'clock p. m.; we always give the local news the day it happens and not two or three days late, and if there is anything going to happen you can always find it out by closely reading this paper. If you don't believe this all you need to do to prove the correctness of it is to subscribe for the NEWS for three months and read and compare it with any paper you please and you cannot fail to be convinced.

IS ANOTHER DEAL ON?

WILL THE B. & O. AND THE REBDING POOL THEIR ISSUES?

McLoed Says He Knows Nothing of It but Pittsburg Advices Say the Deal is a Go—That Reading Anthracite Output Organization, Etc.

PITTSBURG, February 17.—The Chronicle-Telegraph to-night publishes the following: The Reading coal combination is assuming more gigantic proportions than were ever dreamed of, and from the latest developments will have a very vital effect upon Pittsburgh railroad affairs.

Private advice was received by a Pittsburgh banker this afternoon, which are regarded as thoroughly reliable, to the effect that the Rreading company has secured absolute control of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and its numerous branches, and also the New York and New England railroad company. The term of the agreement lease, etc., were finally determined upon by the great financiers who have been negotiating the deal at a conference in Philadelphia last night, when all the necessary papers were signed by the contracting parties.

The importance of the deal in Pittsburg will be very great, in view of the extensive terminal facilities of the Baltimore and Ohio here, as well as those of the Pittsburg and Western and subsidiary lines. The acquisition of the New York and New England now explains the cause of Mr. Austin Corbin to resigning the presidency of Reading to take a similar position in New England. The movement, it is said, clearly demonstrates that Mr. Corbin and Drexel, Morgan & Co., who have been managing the finances of Reading, had a full understanding of the situation more than a year ago, when Mr. McLeod was placed at the head of the big anthractic road.

The capitalization of the combination before to-day's additions was estimated at $500,000,000. The Baltimore and Ohio has $25,000,000 common stock and $15,000,000 preferred, beside its numerous bond issues. The New York and New England has $20,000,000 common stock and $2,000,000 preferred.

The local mileage of the Baltimore and Onio is 1,950 miles, of which 1,305 miles are east of the Ohio, and 745 west of that river. The Baltimore and Ohio lines extend from Philadelphia in the east to Lexington, Va., on the south, to Chicago in the northwest and St. Louis in the west with many collateral lines and feeders, extending through Maryland, Southern and West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, reaching all the lake ports and important points on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

The New York and New England owns 525 miles of main line and branches, controls the Norwich and New York steamer lines, and has connection with the New York Central's system, thus making it an excelient distributor for the anthracite coal trade throughout the eastern states.

FIRE AT NORTH ELIZABETH.

Special to Daily News.

New York, Feb. 18.

A large frame building at North Elizabeth, extending across four tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad was burned to the ground to-day.

Several engines were beneath the building aud were dragged away and saved with great difficulty.

Mrs. Reed, Station Mistress, had a narrow escape with her life. Her face, hair and clothing being badly burned.

The Philadelphia fast train came along at the time the flames were fiercest. The engineer had not time to stop, so he dashed right through the burning wreck, flames, smoke and flying embers enveloped the entire train.

Embers and burning boards and timbers fell on top of the cars. The engineer and fireman were nearly suffocated and blinded by the smoke, and the passengers were badly frightened.

It was a desperate undertaking, but could not be avoided. Fortunately no lives were lost. Trains are somewhat delayed as the fire is still burning and it will take some time to clear the tracks.

ANOTHER BIG FIRE IN NEW YORK.

Special to Daily News.

New York, Feb. 18.

A big fire has been raging for several hours. An entire half block destroyed and the loss over $1,000,000.

It broke out near the Cosmopolitan Hotel, which caught fire several times but was extinguished.

The fireman worked heroically and have now got the flames subdued and under control. No lives lost but some narrow escapes.

DANIEL D. WITHERS DEAD.

Special to the NEWS.

New Orleans, Feb. 18.

Daniel D. Withers the noted turf and horseman died this morning at the Brevoort House in this city. No particulars as to the cause of his death.

Two Infants Burned to Death.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 17.—Two horrible deaths by burning were reported here to-day. A little infant girl of Patrick McKenna, of Mt. Pleasant, was left in the care of a nurse for a while and the little one's clothes caught fire at the grate and before anything could be done the babe was burned to death. An infant child of David Pletcher, of Stonerville, lost its life a day or two ago in about the same way. The babe was left in the charge of two older cnildren while the mother ran across the street to talk with a neighbor. She heard the cries of the children and hurried back to find the babe burned almost to a crisp. The child's clothing caught fire at the grate.

THE PRESIDENT'S MANNER.

His Lack of Popularity Among Politicians—One Explanation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—I was talking to one of the great leaders of the Republican party a few days ago, and I asked him:

"How is it that so many practical politicians are opposing President Harrison, when all of them praise his administration?"

"He has," said the great man, cautiously. "a very grudging way of conferring a favor, so that the recipient of it feels hurt while his material want or craving is satisfied. The President has not learned the grace to salve over the refusal of an office nor the cordiality to make the giving of it a pleasant remembrance. Therein, I think, lies his chief disability. At least, that is what keeps alive the first disappointment which almost always attends a new President. The odds are always against a winner, and a President must disappoint more people than he can gratify in two or three years, for the simple reason that there are ten times as many favors asked as there are places and favors that he can bestow. Before his election the boys have turned in for him in the hope of receiving favors; after his election they do not all get what they want and they vote the President a failure and want somebody else. It is always so."

The tone in which this leader spoke was that of conviction.

"The President has made no important mistakes in policy. He has been true to the record and platform made and expected. Choosing a Cabinet Minister here or there stirs up some discussion. The trouble with the President has been in just those things the Mugwumps admire, and yet he is farthest removed from a Mugwump. He is without the popular temperament, and taking ways, the adroitness and the tact of the politician, and our people from their education and institutions, and perhaps from their temperament, like the politician."

Mr. Wooley at The Court House.

There was a large turn out of the moral and christian people of our city to hear Mr. Wooley last evening. The court room was filled to overflowing. All present men well paid for their time and attention.

The temperance advocates most assuredly had their faith strengthened and their hopes for victory, cheered by his able, forcible and eloquept address, and if any who were present were hostile or indifferent to the cause, they had at least an opportunity to learn something. The address was replete with sharp concise, telling facts and arguments. His analysis of alcohol was simply a terrible but truthful exposition of the monster.

We frequently hear people say, this temperance business is a hackneyed subject. Nothing new can be said about it. Each lecture nowadays, is simply a rehash on a wornout, theadbare subject, and is altogether too monotonous. If any of Mr. Wooley's audience entertained such ideas drior to the lecture, before its close they realized something new could be said, and that the gentleman's lecture was not a rehash of any they had heard before.

His concentration of the dram shops, breweries, distilleries and all parties engaged in the rum traffic, together with the victims of Alcohol in our country, into one great city containing 6,000,000 of inhabitants, all in misery, wickedness, want and wretchedness, and the balance of our country freed from the evil, and rejoicing in health, wealth, peace, prosperity and happiness, is really an inspiration. To-night closes his series of lectures at this place. He will speak at the court house, Go and hear him.

The Temperance Meetings.

Last evening closed the labors of Mr. Wooley in our city, for the present at least. He has gone to other fields, to continue the good work of trying to save men from evil habits. The field for this kind of labor is very large, and no matter where he may go, he will find work enough to do.

Mr Wooley carries with him from this place, the prayers and blessings of the christian men and women of Bellefonte.

The devotional exercises at the close of the address last evening, gave convincing, proof that the heart of the christian people, regardless of church affiliations, were with him, and the "God speed you and your work" given him by all present were deep earnest and sincere. The meeting will be continued indefinitely at the young mens Temperance club rooms, where all feeling an interest are invited to come.

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine. made me feel like a new man," J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he fouud new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease of life. Only 50c. a bottle, at C. M. Parrish's. Drug Store.

THE GORGE STILL INTACT.

BUT THE CITIZENS OF PARKER ARE STILL GREATLY EXCITED.

The Ice Frozen Almost Solid—Dynamite Has Been Used but So Far with but Very Little Effect—The Gorge Is the Greatest on Record, Etc.

PARKER, Pa., February 18.—The ice gorge is still intact and great alarm is felt at Parker and other towns on the Allegheny river. The ice is jammed in a series of gorges. One is at Brady's Bend, another at Monterere, another at Parker, and one a short distance above the last named town.

The chief danger lies in the strength of the Parker gorge and the weakness of the one above. It is feared that the upper gorge will break and the ice will pile against the Parker gorge without breaking it. The result would be that a dam would be formed similar to the one a few years ago at Brady where the river rose six feet in seven minutes.

The operators telegraph that the gorges are frozen almost solid and that it would require much work to break them. The citizens of Parker have tried in vain to cut a passage through the gorge and were working in it all day. Dynamite has been used, but it seems to have little effect on the ice. Superintendent Price, of the river division of the Allegheny Valley road, says:

"There is no exaggeration whatever in regard to the situation at Parker. The people there are in even more danger than has been reported and that city, as well as Brady, is in a bad predicament. The ice is now pretty solidly packed and is piled up on the pier at Parker. The danger is not so much from the ice itself as from the water which cannot get by it freely. Warm weather and a few hours of rain at the headwaters of the Clarion river would do such a large amount of damage that it would be hard to estimate it:" Superintendent Price says it is the worst ice gorge that he has seen in the Allegheny river since 1874. The river bed is apparently packed solid with layers of ice for nearly twenty miles. The head of the gorge is at Goose Bar, oposite Pine Run, about a mile above Phillips. Here the ice is piled nineteen feet high and extends up the river in a solid mass. The gorge exteuds up the river for eight miles to Hillview bend. It is almost solid the entire distance and in some places is piled up several feet above the main body of the gorge. From Hillview Bend north there is an open channel for about a mile. Here is another gorge which extends to the mouth of Clarion river above Parker. Although the ice is piled up over the river banks and to the tops of the bridge piers, the water is much lower.

There is a possibility that the gorge will form such a solid mass as to shut off the water channel altogether. If it does, then Parker and the other towns along the river will be submerged. It would not take such a volume of water very long to rise to the height of the gorged ice. Engineer Arras, of the Allegheny river improvement, stated to-day that he would at ance proceed to Parker to investigate the gorge and see what could be done.

President McLeod Denies It.

PHILADELPHIA, February 17.—President McLeod and other officials of the Reading railroad weze questioned to-night concerning the report that the Reading company had secured control of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and all were emphatic in denying that any deal had been effected or that negotiations looking to that end were in progress.

PHILADELPHIA, F bruary 17.—President McLeod, of the Reading railroad, to-day announced the following changes taking effect on this date: Mr. J. Rogers Maxwell is appointed first vice president, with office at No. 143 Liberty street, New York. Mr. Charles Hartshorne is appointed second vice president, in charge of the finances of the company, with office at No. 228 South Third street, Philadelphia. Mr. Robert H. Sayre is appointed third vice president, in charge of construction and maintenance of way, with office at 228 South Third street, Philadelphia. Mr. John Taylor is appointed general traffic manager, with office at 227 South Fourth street, Philadelphia. Mr. Henry S. Drinker is appointed assistant to the president, with office at 227 South Fourth street, Philadelphia.

To Fill a Circuit Bench Vacancy.

WASAINGTON, Feb. 17.—Attorney General Miller had a conference with the president this afternoon in regard to the appointment of a judge for the Ninth circuit, and it is expected that the matter will be settled in a few days. There are no indications, however, that the president contemplates immediate action in the matter of filling the vacancy on the United States supreme beuch, caused by the death of Mr. Justice Bradley.

Died While in Church.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Feb 17—During the singing of a hymn at the opening of the evening service in the Evangelical church at Loganton, this county. Rev. John Heller, a local preacher inclined his head as if in prayer and breathed his last. Heart disease was the cause of his death. He was 87 years of age.

A Cave-In Causes Consternation.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 17.—The upper workings of the Cooper vein in W. G. Papne & Co's mines, Luzerne covnty, caved in. Three or four houses on Cooper hill were more or less damaged, and it is feared that the settling is not yet ended. To-night the people residing near the place were much excited, fearing it may extend along.

THE PEOPLE WANT IT.

Senator Hale Tells of the Popular Demand for Reciprocity, and How it Works Hand in Hand With Protection.

The people of the United States, broad and large, gave a generous welcome to the Reciprocity scheme from the moment that it appeared in Congress, and no measure of the present Administration has received more hearty public support than this. Influences ephemerally potential in the Republican party were arrayed against it, but all this disappeared when expressions in its favor came pouring in during the summer and early fall of 1890 from boards of trade and commerce, from district and State conventions, and indeed from all the places where the people gathered together to discuss and commend the Reciprocity plan.

Attempts were made in certain quarters to show that the Reciprocity plan was opposed to and interfered with the great doctrine of Protection to American labor to which the republican party is fuliy committed; but all this disappeared when it was seen by the people that what was comprehended in the scheme was an increased trade with countries that produce articles which we can not produce, which we can purchase with the products of our farms and mines and manufactories, which our southern sister nations need and which they can not produce. Reciprocity of this kind is in fact an aid to Protection and broadens the field of the American laborer by opening new markets for his products to be paid for in articles which can never compete with his labor. The people all understood this, and they made their voice heard and their wishes known here and in the Chamber at the other end of the Capitol, and, except in the Democratic party, open opposition was downed and no further hostile note was heard

HE TALKS SENSE!

The President of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Ex-Governor R. B. Bullock, of Georgia, President of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, said a few days ago in speaking of the policy of protection in the South: "I am more interested in Republican success and the maintenance of the policy of protection in this country, because I live in the South, than any Republican at the North. You see, it is this way with a Republican in the South, that he has no say in shaping the policy of the Government. I know that protection means the successful progress and the complete restorarion and building up of the South to an extent that was not possible in the slave days and would not be possible under free trade. The adoption of what the Democrats term the tariff reform policy, which is little more or less than free trade, would bring complete ruin to four-fifths of the manufacturing interests of the South; would shut down the cotton mills of New England and Georgia, which now consume the larger part of the cotton products of the South; would put the cotton growers at the mercy of the English manufactures, and would make the prices even lower than now, when overproduction has caused them to drop to the lowest prices in years. It is because I have this feeling, different from a Northern Republican, that I am anxious that the Republican party should make no mistrke in its Presidential nomination."

Proceedings in the Delamater Trial.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Feb. 17.—The time of the court in the Delemater case was consumed today by the prosecution placing on the stand many of those to whom the bank was indebted and placing in evidence deposit books and certificates of deposit. Nothing of importance was revealed, and there was littlesparring between the counsel. At the hour of adjournment this evening the counsel for the commonwealth stated they were nearly through with their side of the case, but asked leave to produce additional evidence which they were seeking but had not at hand. The defense objected to the extension of time asked for, but the court decided that, as the prosecution agreed to consume but one hour's time tomorrow morning, the additional hour would be granted. The defense will open the ball immediately therefore, and it is believed the interest in the proceedings may be temporarly revived.

A Five Story Building Burned.

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., Feb. 17 —The five-story brick stone building of Caswell & Moore, house furnishers, of Phoenixville, was ruined by fire this morning, also the Grand Army of the Republic and the Knights of the Golden Eagle headquarters in the same building. Loss over $72,500; insured. The origin of the fire is unknown.

MERIT WINS.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on there merits—C. M. Parish. Druggists.

A JEALOUS MAN SUICIDES.

CHRISTIAN KLENK, A WAITER AT HOTEL DUQUESNE.

A Tragedy in Pittsburg—Klenk Sends a Bullet Into His Brain Yesterday Afternoon While in the Presence of his Wife—He is Still Living But will Certainly Die

PITTSBURG, Feb., 19.—Christian Klenk, 28 years of age, who has been employed as a waiter at the Hotel Duquense for over a year, attempted to end his life this afternoon by sending a bullet into his brain, the act being the result of a deep rooted jealously, Klenk and his wife have been living for some time at the corner of Stevenson and Ann streets, and Mrs. Klenk being a thrifty industrious woman, wishing to help along in the world took in roomers, as the house they occupied was too large for their small family which consisted of husban, wife and a 5 year old boy. Klenk it appears, became jealous of his wife and the occupants of the rooms, the result of which was a quarrel. Last week the husband decided to leave and taking the boy with him sent him rather took him and left him with relations in Philadelphia. On his return from there he began drinking heavily.

This afternoon he went to his home and upon the refusal of his wife to get him a meal he drew a revolver and shot himself in the head. He was removed to the Mercy hospital for treatment but this will avail nothing as the physicians say he will die. Mrs. Klenk says they were married in Philadelphia about five years ago. Her maiden name was Lizzie Wahl. The child she says was not hers, but Klenk was the father. Her mother was opposed to the marriage but as she loved Klenk and, in order to get her consent to the marriage she took the boy, assumed the disgrace and said it was her baby. From all accounts Mrs. Klenk was a good wife and there were no grounds for her husband,s jealoasy.

THE Mississippi legislature has passed a bill creating a new county, to be called "Jeff Davis" county. One would suppose the South had suffered enough woes throught Davis to want to forget him.

—Mr. William Jenkins, is building a new porch in front of his residence on High street.

—Mr. James Schofield, is agitating an electric rail way to be run between his store and Zion.

—Mr. James Schofield will address th Grange meeting at Zion, to-morrow night, his subject will be "Farming in Europe.

—The first meeting of the singing class will be held Monday evening the 29 in the Y. M. C. A. Every person is invited to be present the first evening.

—Prof. Bristol has visited every section of the United States and Canada, and everywhere his entertainment has been pronounced by the public to be unique, novel, interesting, instructive and amusing.

—The funeral of Mr. George W. Tate, took place from his residence on Spring street, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Houck officiating, assisted by Rev. Miles O. Noll. The remains were intred in the Union Cemetery.

—The funeral of Mrs. Monroe Armor, took place from the St. John's Catholic church, this morning at 10 o'clock, Father McArdle officiating assisted by Father Maher of Milton. The remains were interred tn the Catholic cemetery.

—"All things come to him who waits," but do not wait to see a more interesting, instructive, amusing, and in a word a better entertainment than Prof. D. M. Bristol's Eques-Curriculum affords. Disappointment will surely be the result.

—The Italian Orchestra, of Altoona, arrived in Bellefonte last evening with the intention of playing for a ball. But owing to the death of Mrs. Armor the ball was postponed until next Tuesday evening. The orchestra returned home on the next train.

—Any enterprise that has outlived all competitors and grows more and more each year in popularity, must have merit. All that can be said as to the merits of Prof. D. M. Bristol's Eques-Curriculum pales into nothingness before the enviable record it has made.

The Entertainment Last Night.

Those who attended the entertainment at the opera house last evening, were well paid for their trouble and assuredly got their money's worth. So far as the performers are concerned, it was a grand success. With hardly an exception the High School pupils acquitted themselves creditably and the recitations and essays etc. were delivered in a manner that would have been creditable to professionals and certainly was to the amateurs. The singing was par "excellent." The old, war songs were rendered in such style and with such energy and effect that the entire audience, ladies as well as the old soldier boys and all felt so patriotic they were ready to shoulder arms and rally round the flag. The receipts were not as great as we hoped, amounting to $75.00. They should have reached $200. However the expenses are very light. As Mr. Garman charged nothing for the use of the opera house. The lighting and heating and a small amount for programme's covers the expenses.

The entertainers tender thei thanks to Manager Garman for his kind courtesy, and to those that patronized them in their efforts to aid a good cause.

Essays Wanted.

Prof: D. M. Bristol, whose school of thirty educated horses will exhibit in the opera house next Monday and Tuesday evenings and Tuesday afternoon will give two prizes, one a $5 gold piece and the other a $2.50 gold piece for the two best essay on "The Horse." For the third best essay on the same subject, he will present the successful competitor with two reserved seats for the evening performance. Competition open to the pupils of the intermediate and primary departments of the public schools, only. All essays must be left at the store of Garman & Lukenbach's, in whose window the prizes can be seen, by not later than 6 o'clock next Monday evening when they will be submitted to a committee and the awards made at the matinee on Tuesday.

The auxiliary will be represented by the Misses Green. Delegations from neighboring Posts will join them here and at various points on the route and all proceed to the Smoky City. May they have a pleasant time.

DEATH OF DR. ELIAS W. HALE.

Which Takes Place Saturday Morning at Mentone, Southern France.

Another prominent Bellefonter has gone to join the great throng. On Saturday evening a cable dispatch from Mentone, in Southern France, was received in this place stating that Dr. E. W. Hale died in that place that morning about eight o'clock. Our readers will remember that in the early part of October Dr. Hale, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss Ella, departed from Bellefonte for the continent, going straight to Mentone where they have sojourned ever since.

At first it was thought that the salubrious climate of that famous town was beneficial to Mr. Hale's health and that his life would be prolonged over the winter. But about six weeks ago he grew suddenly worse and his family cabled for Mr. and Mrs John Mull, of Philipsburg, relatives of the Hales, to come over. On their arrival it was already manifest that Mr. Hale's death was only a question of weeks or days. He continued to grow worse until Saturday morning when he died.

Dr. Elias W. Hale was born at Lewistown in 1824. He was the fourth child of Elias W. Hale, Esq., one of the most prominent men of Mifflin county, and was the last surviving child of a family of six children. He studied the practice of medicine under Dr. Joseph B. Ard, of Lewistown, and for a number of years practiced in that place, where he was also interested in the milling business. From Lewistown he moved to Reedsville where he practiced as a physician for a few years and then in the spring of 1864 he moved to Bellefonte. His practice of medicine in this place was somewhat limited. In 1874 he, in connection with William P. Duncan and C. L. Gerberich bought the old mill in this place and went into the milling business under the firm name of Duncan, Hale & Co. In 1882 Mr. Duncan, retired and the firm name was changed to that of Gerberich, Hale & Co., Mr. Hale being only a silent partner while Mr. Gerberich managed the business of the firm.

Mr. Hale was twice, married the first time to a lady of Lewistown by whom he had two children, a son and daughter, the died when twelve years of age and Harry some three years ago. Mr. Hale's second wife was Mary V. Valentine, a cousin of the present Valentines residing in this place. Only one child, Miss Ella, was the result of this marriage. For many years Mr. Hale has been a member of the Episcopal church, contributing liberally towards its support.

Dr. Hale was probably one of the largest property owners in this place, owning in addition to his real estate in Bellefonte a number of fine farms in this and adjoining counties, and his wealth would foot up hundreds of thousands.

His body will be brought across the ocean in a sealed leaden casket and interment will be made at Lewistown, Mifflin county. It will probably arrive in about two weeks. It is not at all likely the remains will be brought to Bellefonte.

The Cooley Gang.

The Citizens, in and about Fairchance are having a lively time trying to capture the Cooley boys and their partners in crime. The gang is accused of nearly all the crimes in the criminal calendar.

One of the boys, Frank Cooley was convicted of being one of the three men who burned the feet of old Miss Ross. He escaped from jail after conviction two years ago and has been at large ever since. There is $1000, reward offered for their capture, Sheriff McCormick is trying to surround them with a cordon of deputies and citizens. They are supposed to be hiding in a spur of the Blue Ridge mountains. The deputies and farmers have been on the war path after them for about a week, and report says they have punished a large amount of whiskey, but have captured nobody.

They have seen two of the Cooley's Frank and Jack, and Jack Ramsey several times, but have allowed their discretion to outweigh their valor. The bandits are all armed with winchester's and revolvers and the valiant deputies seem to think distance lends enchantment to the view. Or in other words that they can see the Cooleys all they care about, and stand back pretty far at the same time. Frank Cooley offers to surrender to the sheriff alone, but will fight the mob to the death. Bill Turner who was formerly a member of the gang surrendered to the authorities some time since and was promised immunity if he would help capture the balance of the outlaws. He is now with the deputies and he and his old pals are in for a fight if they meet.

The Sheriff says he will capture them at any cost.

The next report from the seat of war will probably be capture or bloodshed. Possibly both.

Lost, Strayed or Stolen.

The question is, what has become of the order of our councils requiring a board side walk to be constructed along west Potter street? Some time since a numerously signed petition was presented to councils asking for said walk. The petition was heard and acted upon by council and the walk ordered. But as yet matters over there are in statu quo.

People living there are compelled to walk in the mud. the children are obliged to wade the mud to get to school. The mud is pretty deep just now and some of us have no rubber boots. Why is this thusly?

Will somebody please rise and explain, and will our city fathers please see that their orders are at once obeyed? If they will the residents on West Potter street will rise up and call them blessed.

One of the residents on the muddy street.

STATE OF TRADE.

A FURTHER DECLINE IN COTTON AND SILVER.

Exports of Wheat Seriously Diminish—No Change in the Iron Market At Southern Points.

The business failures occurring throughthe country during the last seven days, as reported to R. G. Dunn & Co., number for the United States 235, and for Canada 41, or a total of 276, as compared with the totals of 310 last week and 297 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 297, representing 262 failures in the United States, and 35 in the Dominion of Canada.

Silver and cotton have declined yet further the latter to 7 3-16c, the lowest price for many years, and silver bullion to 41d at London, the lowest price ever recorded, though there followed a slight recovery to 41¼d. Cotton receipts and exports have both been much larger than a year ago.

Wheat was declined 1⅛c, on sales of 45,000,000 bushels, the exports being seriously diminished, and corn has fallen 1½c. on sales of 15,000,000 bushels, the Western receipts being unusually large. Lard and hogs were somewhat stronger, the exports of products from New York fall a little below those of the same week last year, but the shipments from other ports continue very large.

The production of pig iron is about stationary, amounting February 1st to 187,383 tons, against 188,082 January 1, and 146,050 a year ago. Larger sales of copper are reported at 10.72 cents, and a fair distribution of tin, while lead is a trifle lower.

Reports from other cities indicate a general improvement in trade. At Philadelphia the dry goods trade is quite encouraging. Prospects at Baltimore are much brighter, with decided improvement in leather, shoes and harness. Better accounts also come from the South, where trade has improved. At Nashville it is very fair; at Memphis light but improving and at Montgomery increasing. At New Orleans business in all lines is only fair but there is a slight improvement in cotton, and sugar is firm and active with light receipts. Nearly all Southern points report an easier money market and more hopeful prospects.

Money is only too abundant, and has been quoted on call this week at 2½ and 1 per cent. The treasury continued to lose gold and has caused some embarassment during the week by refusing to supply domestic exchange except upon actual deposits of gold, but it has put out $281,000 more money of all kinds than it has taken in.

With much reduced revenue and large disbursements required by appropriations the Treasury is not in shape to bear with ease the strain which financial vagaries in Congress might put upon it. but confidence is felt that no measure calculated to do harm can be passed over veto.

And the mercury 'way downward runs,
How pleasant to sit for the coals' ruddy glow
At ten dollars a couple of tons!—(Puck.)

Another Centre County Lady Honored

Mrs. Grace E. Dutton, nee Dunham, eldest daughter of Col. D. S. Dunham, of this, place, was at the recent spring election unanimously elected School Director of Upper Chichester township, Delaware county, Pa. She had no knowledge that she was even a candidate until notified of her election by the election officials.

Mrs. Dutton was formerly a pupil in the stone school house of this place, under the tuition of General D. H. Hastings as teacher, and a graduate of the Lock Haven Normal School. We are happy to hear o. honors being conferred on the ladies of old Centre county and could name several ladies in Bellefonte who are worthy of similar honors.

They Got Married Just the Same.

A novel and unique wedding, in which the action of the woman in the case figures prominently, has come to light at Muncy. Several months ago the woman, who lived on Muncy Hills, near Turbotville, wrote a letter to a man who was in the employ of A. C. Trumbower, the lumberman, but had quit just before the epistle arrived, and the lumberman in mistake opened it. It stated that if he didn't come and marry her she would marry the first man that came along. He handed the letter to another employe by the name of Bob Columbus, and he left for the home of the girl, and yesterday a compromise was affected and they became man and wife. The girl's name is Emma Phillips. She is fair looking with blonde hair.

—The Bric-a-brac reception at the Y. M. C. A. last evening was a grand success, the people who attended went away very much pleased with the workings of the Association, especially the physical part of it. The large crowd was held for over an hour in the gymnasium watching the regular class work. Many words of praise were spoken for the good work done by the young men with the short practice they have had.

The Association wishes to thank every one who so kindly donated the many beautiful gifts which were received last evening also the orchestra who so kindly furnished music throughout the entire evening.

All are cordially invited to call and see the rooms in their new dress.

A GREAT WOLF DRIVE.

Kansans Turn Out to Rid the State of Many Pests;

The wolf drive, preparations for which have been going on in Girard, for over two months, took place, and such a wolf drive has never been witnessed before in this country. In four of the township wolves and foxes have increased with such rapidity that the farmers thought best to take some action in this matter and exterminate the pests.

The drive was conducted under military discipline, was carefully planned and covered a territory of 100 square miles. At 9 o'clock in the morning about 4,000 men surrounded a section of country measuring 10 miles square. With 1,000 men on each mile of the square, there were 160 men to the mile, or one man every 50 feet for the distance of 100 miles around the square.

The drive was conducted with the same precision as an army in the field. The forces were divided into three battalions, each had its colonel, major, adjutant and lieutanant officers at the centre of each line. The battalions were consecutively numbered from 1 to 12. The signal for starting was fired by the orderly sergeant at the center of each brigade, and precisely at 6 o'clock the lines moved one mile each half hour. Road officers were instructed to dress up their men at each section. The men on the lines furnished themselves with horns, drums, etc., to make as much noise as possible while slowly advancing to the center. A brass band and several drum corps accompanied the troops to furnish music.

No intoxicating liquors were allowed in the lines. Firearms were not used except by those designated by the general. Others carried clubs. The wolves were not to be killed until they were rounded up in the centre. All the line officers and skirmishers walked, the officers being designated by different colors worn. The chase began at 1 o'clock, and as a result two wolves were killed. A 5 o'clock the forces left the field feeling jubilant over their success

In Memory of Miss. Gill.

The life and character of Miss Sarah Preston Gill, who but a few days ago, was laid to rest in our midst, deserves more than a mere passing mention. This estimable woman was born in Union county Pa., Feb. 24 1815 and died in Bellefonte, Feb. 8, 1892.

Sarah's parents, with a large family of children, moved to a farm near Pleasant Gap when she was 5 years of age, where she grew to womanhood. Industry, frugality and devotion in a clearly defined line of duty to her parents and her God, were her most prominent traits of character. From girlhood to helpless old age, she devoted her energies to the tender care of the members of her parents household. Much of their living was earned by her industry for many years her aged invalid father was provided for and tenderly nursed by herself and her sister Nancy. When sixteen years of age she was converted and joined the Methodist church in Bellefonte where she has resided for more than sixty years. In all these years her devotion to her church was shown by uninterrupted attendance upon the means of grace and was an inspiration to others. While Sarah was not loud, she was profoundly sincere, in her religious profession which was shown by a pure and upright life. The two or three closing years of her life were passed in great bodily weakness. But in these years she strikingly illustrated Pauls declaration "that though the outward man perish the inward man is renewed day by day."

There was unmurmuring submission to the will of God, and a constant enlarging of the Divine image in her spiritual nature until the bright morning when she closed her eyes on earthly scenes and awake in the full possession of the Divine likeness.

Her departure so quiet and peaceful was a most beautiful illustration of Mrs. Barbauld's description of the righteous man's death, when she says:

"So fades a summer cloud away
So sinks the gale when storms are o'er
So gently shuts the eye of day
So dies a wave along the shore."

Wanted to Be a Hero.

HARRISBURG, Pa., February 22.—A young printer named E. B. Wright, who hails from Columbia, is alleged to have made an attempt to kill himself at a Market street boarding house to day for the love of a girl. Those who know the young man are of the opinion that suicide never entered his mind, but that he pointed a revolver at his head simply to become the hero of a newspaper sensation.
